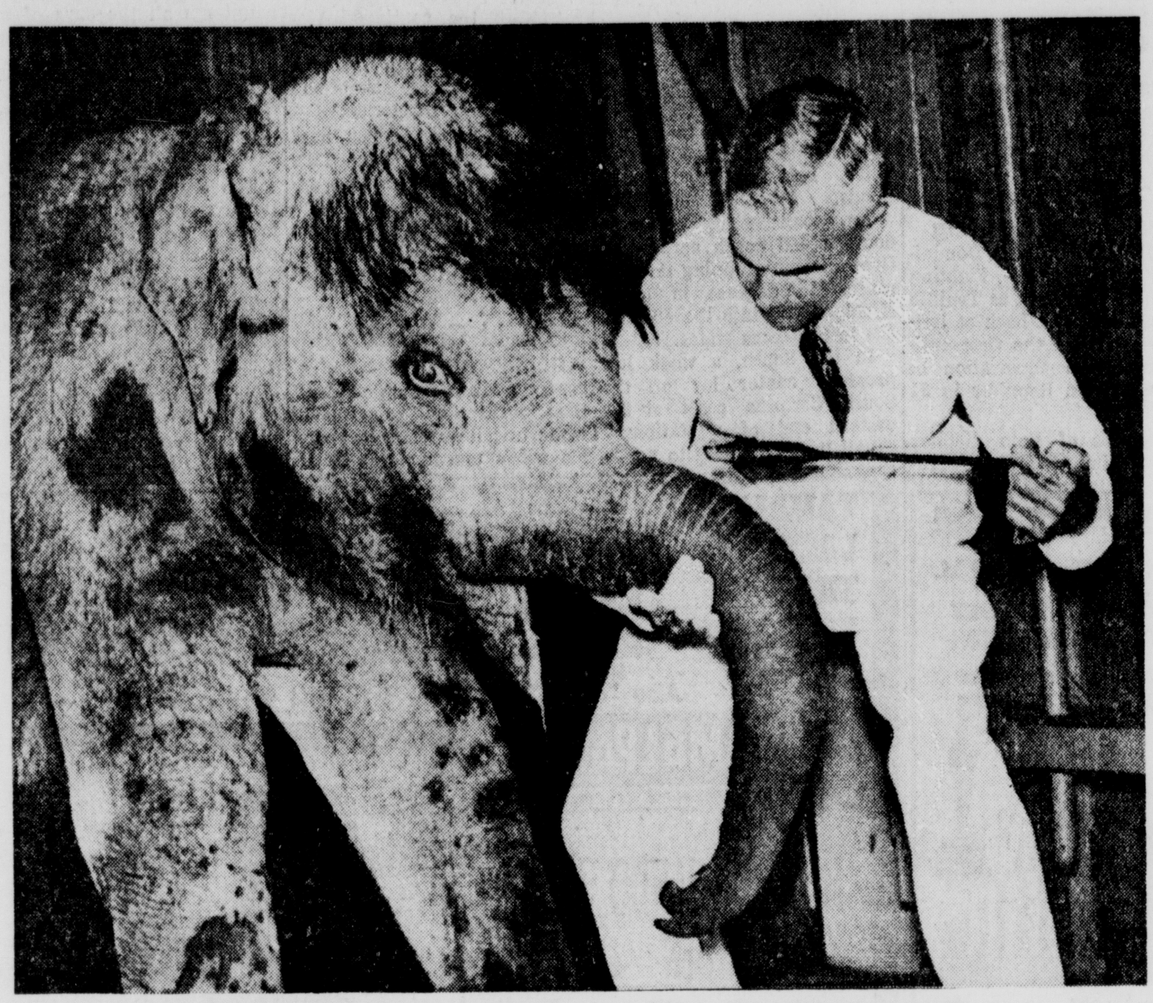
Nikita Threatens West With Military Buildup



FIGHT TO SAVE BABY ELEPHANT

Calls For Summit On East Germany

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev announced today Russia would increase its military budget by nearly 3.5 billion dollars a year because of increased world tension over Berlin and stepped up American and NATO defense spending.

He invited President John F. Kennedy, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French President Charles de Gaulle to a summit conference to write a peace conference on Germany and warned at the same time Russia had the rocket and hydrogen bomb might to wipe out the West.

In a sweeping, 50-minute speech before Soviet Military Academy graduates Khrushchev blew hot and cold with offers for a multitude of international treaties, boasts of Russian military strength and threats to blow the West off the map.

Khrushchev announced Russia was halting its own armed forces demobilization plan — which he had announced earlier as a cut of 1.2 million — and served notice Russia would increase both nuclear and conventional armed forces.

"The Soviet government, taking into account the obtaining situation, was compelled to instruct the defense ministry to suspend till further orders the reduction of the armed forces planned for 1961," Khrushchev said.

"In view of the fact that the war budgets of the NATO countries are growing, the Soviet government has decided to increase the defense allocations for this year by 3,144,000,000 rubles which raises total military spendings in 1961 to 12,399,000,000 rubles."

(Under Moscow's new valuation of the ruble the increase would be by $3,489,840,000 to a total of $13,762,890,000. However Western military experts said the 13.7-billion-dollar budget does not include the great sums spent on rocket and other research appearing in Western military budgets.)

Khrushchev's blunt speech to the military academy came as Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky told the group the Western Press had been stirring up a war psychosis and "by so doing they wish to expose others to an atomic blow and remain outside its reach themselves." He said "this won't work, Messrs. Capitalists."

U.S. Jarred By Speech In Moscow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's decision to strengthen Soviet armed forces today jarred defense department planners who had been assuming America and Russia were approaching a stage of "parity" in military manpower.

U.S. officials said every effort would be made to avoid an intensification of the arms race. But they also said Khrushchev's moves undoubtedly would force a sharp review of America's military planning.

The private diplomatic assessment of Khrushchev's declaration, which was made in a Moscow speech, was that it was another move to step up propaganda pressure over Berlin.

There was no official State Department comment. But the speech was seen as a sort of package propaganda maneuver designed to increase pressure on the western powers, promote the idea that Russia is the one taking the initiative for peace, while simultaneously holding out bait for negotiations.

At the Capitol, the few senators available for comment look on the possibility of a summit conference on Berlin and Germany with a critical eye.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said "It is another case of Khrushchev trying to seize the initiative."

One of the main topics of interest to defense officials was the Soviet premier's declarations on the military front.

Last year he announced plans to reduce his military establishment to 2,433,000 men. This would have been slightly smaller than America's 2,500,000-man armed force.

Suit Filed To Block Referendum

John R. Kiker, who once tried to promote secession of North Marin to form a new county, filed suit yesterday to block a referendum on retaining the post of county administrator.

Kiker, a retired Coast Guard chief signalman, filed a petition asking Marin Superior Court to halt the election, which has been scheduled for next June by the county board of supervisors. He contended the petition calling for the referendum was illegal because it included many names of residents of Marin's incorporated cities "over whom the administrator has no direct jurisdiction."

Kiker lives at 1904 Benton Lane, Novato, barely outside the Novato city limits.

The referendum petition, bearing more than 11,000 signatures, was certified last Monday by County Clerk George S. Jones after his staff found more than the necessary 5,318 valid signatures while checking only about half the list.

In March, 1958, Kiker started a move for secession of North Marin to form a new "County of Pacheco," at the same time attacking the legality of the Marin County Board of Freeholders, then in process of drafting a county charter (later rejected by the voters). He proposed the abandoned Grant School (since razed) in Novato as a courthouse for the new county.

Then and now, Kiker styled himself a "criminologist and taxpayer." He is a director of the Marin County Taxpayers Assn., small but vocal group which is found in consistent opposition to proposals of the county and its school districts.

Doctor Gives Up Practice For Research

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Last fall, Dr. Ronald B. Mackenzie gave up a profitable practice as general practitioner in Sausalito to study epidemiology. Next month he will go to the Panama Canal Zone to do research in encephalitis.

He will be accompanied by his wife, Jean, and two children, Nicol, 10, and Mary Jo, 8.

Reasons for ending one career and starting another, he said, are: "I became aware that I was spending a great deal of my time dealing with things that really weren't very important from a medical standpoint," and "I had an awareness that about two-thirds of the world's population has some pretty tremendous problems medically. In fact, they have three problems — undernutrition, over-population and endemic diseases."

He said his decision to turn to research was stimulated by his treatment of two patients who had parasitic diseases.

Dr. Mackenzie will work in Balboa, Canal Zone, with the Middle America research unit of the National Institutes of Health, an organization of the U.S. Public Health Service.

He expects to work with Venezuelan equine encephalitis, he said. "We attempt to trace viruses through varlous Insects—mosquitos, ticks and mites—to establish what their natural cycle is. By breaking this cycle, you can protect people from getting the disease."

Dr. Mackenzie terminated his practice and spent the last academic year at the University of California's School of Public

Morrison Choice As Treasurer Might Be Called 'All Sewed Up'

By RANDALL GOULD

Choice of a new county tax collector-treasurer to fill the position to be vacated through resignation of M. F. Donohue is expected to be made Tuesday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Political observers today seemed generally to have reached conclusion that at least four of the five supervisorial votes had been sewed up for Col. Joseph W. Morrison of Mill Valley, who transferred on temporary clerical basis into Donohue's office Monday after several months' service as temporary deputy county clerk.

But a battle seemed in prospect through decision of Stanley J. Fontez, senior accountant in the office of the county auditor, to seek the job at the polls if he doesn't get it from the supervisors.

"I consider myself the man best qualified of any applicant," said Fontez today. "Therefore I am prepared to submit myself to the voters at the election next June."

Fontez has sent a letter to the supervisors in which he said that "aside from Mr. Vaughan (Donohue's chief assistant Leo Vaughan) I have the best qualifications for the position."

Vaughan was recommended by Donohue but has withdrawn on advice of his doctor. Fontez says in his letter, to be read before the board Monday, that his decision to apply for the job was made after he learned from Donohue that the latter's resignation is to be effective about July 31 and that Vaughan "is not in a position to succeed him."

Further, says Fontez, he decided "after talking to my supervisor, Mr. (L.A.) de Lisle, and to Mr. Vaughan." De Lisle has put himself solidly behind the Fontez candidacy and may address the board to that effect.

Fontez indicated that he still hopes the supervisors may choose him on a basis of his qualifications, recited in his letter and including two-and-one-half years as senior accountant (chief) in which capacity "it has been my duty to supervise all the activities of the tax collection cycle."

But Morrison was conceded to have prospects for no fewer than four votes as follows:

Supervisor J. Walter Blair, whose campaign he managed and who is his fellow-townsman in Mill Valley. Blair is close to County Clerk George S. Jones, who has backed Morrison.

Chairman William D. Fusselman, believed to incline toward Morrison partly on a basis of friendship for Jones. He and de Lisle, once warm friends, haven't been such lately.

Supervisor George Ludy, disposed in general to go along with Blair and Fusselman though he objects to being

WILL BRUCE BE GRANTED THAT RAISE?

Something good is finally happening about Marin County Administrator Alan Bruce: He's due for a raise in pay from $1,075 to $1,125 monthly.

Being "due" doesn't clinch the thing though. The matter will go before the board of supervisors Monday because Bruce has been in his present office six months after promotion from assistant at $930.

By ordinance adopted by the supervisors July 29, 1959, any county employee is due for a step increase six months after being "promoted to the first step of a higher range carrying increased responsibilities and different work."

Terra Linda Firemen's 'Good Neighbor Policy'

A "good neighbor policy" of the Terra Linda fire department last night helped quell flames in county jurisdiction, but menacing nearby Terra Linda dwellings.

Terra Linda Fire Chief Richard Flaherty said today that he felt fully justified in helping James Auburn Maddox put out a fire in his garage at 599 Montecillo Road, even though the Terra Linda Community Services District, which operates the fire department, doesn't start until No. 600.

"There was grass between and if the fire had grown it might have run through that with no regard for politics," said Flaherty.

Maddox's view was that "the Terra Linda people were all most helpful and I'm more than grateful."

Maddox said he was working in his garage, stepped over to a neighbor's home briefly, and returned to find flames leaping up as result of explosion of a flood light. He promptly turned his garden hose on the fire while an Independent-Journal newspaper carrier living nearby, Peter Dillon Kelly Jr., phoned the Terra Linda firehouse without instruction.

Fourteen volunteers turned out with Chief Flaherty and extinguished the fire after damage estimated at $200 to $500.

County fire department equipment arrived later from Santa Venetia.

Kidnap-Slayer Suspect Kills Himself

MOAB, Utah (AP)—A former Marine here who shot himself when confronted by FBI agents was linked today to the highway murder of a Connecticut tourist and the kidnaping of her teen-age daughter.

The ex-Marine, Able B. Aragon, 36, an unemployed Utah coal miner, was stopped at a road junction near here last night, then stuck a pistol to his head, fired and died two hours later without saying a word.

There was no trace of the kidnaped girl, Denise Sullivan.

Denise, her 41-year-old mother, Jeanette Sullivan, and a family friend, Charles Boothroyd, 55, were on a Western vacation in the remote Utah badlands last Tuesday when they stopped to help another motorist, apparently stalled on a back road.

Police said the motorist pulled a gun, demanded money and then shot Mrs. Sullivan dead, seriously wounded Boothroyd, took Denise hostage and fled.

Little Girl Saved From Drowning

A Redwood High School sophomore saved the life of a 2-year-old girl who nearly drowned in a Larkspur swimming pool Thursday, it was learned today.

Thomas Richey Jr., 14, was credited by the child's mother, Mrs. Ronald McClure, with saving her daughter, Lisa. He snatched the unconscious child from the pool and revived her with artificial respiration. Richey said he learned the procedure when he was a Boy Scout.

Mrs. McClure is a resident and domestic worker at the Richey home at 19 Francis Avenue. The swimming pool is in the back yard. Mrs. McClure described Thursday's events like this:

Lisa had been swimming for about two hours and was taken in the house about 4 p.m. Someone had left the door to the backyard ajar, and Lisa slipped back outside. About 15 minutes later Thomas, who was

Calls For Summit On East Germany

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev announced today Russia would increase its military budget by nearly 3.5 billion dollars a year because of increased world tension over Berlin and stepped up American and NATO defense spending.

He invited President John F. Kennedy, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French President Charles de Gaulle to a summit conference to write a peace conference on Germany and warned at the same time Russia had the rocket and hydrogen bomb might to wipe out the West.

MIGHTY PROUD — Mrs. James Hoffa throws a salute to the members of the Teamsters Union who re-elected her husband president for the next five years. (AP Wirephoto)

Hoffa Issues Warning: Leave Teamsters Alone

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — James R. Hoffa today advised his critics to get lost. He said he's "whipped 'em" and they might as well admit it.

Hoffa, 48, a one-time Detroit warehouse hand, was elected overwhelmingly yesterday to a second five-year term as president of the Teamsters, the nation's largest labor union, over only token opposition.

"Seriously," Hoffa remarked later, "I think Bobby Kennedy, his brother the president, the secretary of labor, and the supposed Senate select committee ought to recognize now that the time and effort they've put in trying to destroy the Teamsters have completely failed. It was a waste of time."

Hoffa referred, of course, to President John F. Kennedy, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg, and to the Senate investigating Committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.)

"From now on, they ought to leave us alone," Hoffa said.

"They ought to quit fooling around and let us operate as a trade union and as Americans."

Hoffa said the charges and investigations piled up against him and the Teamsters during nearly four years have been no picnic, but he said he isn't nervous about them continuing.

He said that congressional critics ought to admit that, "while they may embarrass and harass teamsters, they can't frighten 'em."

Hoffa was asked about his goals for the next five years as head of the 1.7 million Teamsters union. He said that he wants to increase the union's membership to at least two million and return to "the house of labor," meaning the AFL-CIO. The federation expelled the Teamsters for corruption several years ago.

Hoffa said that another aim is to minimize strikes while reducing the accepted retirement age to 55 years after 20 years of work. The present Social Security retirement age is 65, but Hoffa has negotiated a 60-year retirement age in most Teamsters contracts.

The Teamsters convention adjourned yesterday night after a flambovant finale to the five-day session. The approximately 2,000 delegates engaged in a noisy and colorful election session.

Hoffa, as everyone had predicted, was elected in a landslide. His only opponent, Milton J. Liss, president of Local 478, Newark, N.J., withdrew halfway through a tedious roll call vote.

Jessel, Girl Plan To Wed?

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Joan Tyler, 27, said today she plans to drop her paternity suit against comedian George Jessel, 63, because the couple will probably marry.

"As far as I'm concerned the suit is dropped," she said.

Miss Tyler, who was Jessel's fiancee five year ago, filed the complaint June 26 in superior court charging that Jessel fathered her unborn baby. The famed toastmaster's reply at the time was, "at my age—it's a compliment."

Jessel confirmed that he and Miss Tyler had talked things over and she decided to drop the suit. "I'm very happy," the comedian said. "Everything will be worked out amicably. I'll help her in every way."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Boycott Ends

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI) — A citizens negotiating committee today announced downtown merchants agreed to allow Negroes to eat at white lunch counters and Negroes immediately called off a 15-month boycott.

The Rt. Rev. Albert R. Stuart, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Georgia and spokesman for the committee, said that the integration agreement would be announced from pulpits of Negro churches tomorrow.

Polio Down

ATLANTA (UPI) — Reports of polio cases over the nation are "remarkably low" so far this year, the U.S. Public Health Service communicable disease center here reported today.

The center announced that only 18 cases—eight of them paralytic — were reported by 11 states for the week ended July 1. So far this year 237 cases of polio have been reported as compared to 469 by the same time last year and 1,026 the year before.

Guerrillas Killed

SAIGON, South Vietnam (UPI) —Sixty-one Viet Cong communist guerrillas have been killed in two fierce battles, one of which lasted more than 24 hours, the government announced today.

The battles took place four days ago in the vicinity of My An village in Kien Phong Province southwest of here.

Army units were reported to have captured a Viet Cong command post after the battle raged for more than 24 hours. Fifty rebels were killed in that skirmish, the army said.

In the other operation, government units engaged Viet Cong guerrillas not far from the city of Tayning, northwest of here. Eleven Viet Cong were slain in that battle.

One Viet Cong guerrilla was captured and six rifles, one submachine-gun and a large supply of ammunition were also taken by government forces.

Congo Trouble

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — The United Nations sought today to persuade Katanga Province to send its parliamentary delegation to Leopoldville this month to try to return democratic order to the Congo.

Sture Linner, U.N. representative in Leopoldville, sent his political aide, Mahroed Khiari of Tunisia, to Elisabethville to talk with Katanga President Moise Tshombe.

Before Tshombe was released recently by the Leopoldville government, he promised to cooperate in returning The Congo to parliamentary rule.

But when he got to his home capital he demanded a summit meeting of the principal Congolese leaders before parliament reconvened.

Send-Off For Liz

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor and husband Eddie Fisher, invited by the State Department to represent America at the Moscow film festival, get a rousing sendoff tonight at a huge fund-raising dinner attended by Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and scores of movie stars.

The actress—who once visited Russia with another husband, the late Mike Todd — leaves for the Soviet Union tomorrow with Fisher, her fourth mate. It is Fisher's first Russian trip.

"The gentleman in charge of the cultural exchange for the State Department called us Thursday," Fisher said. "He urged us to go.

"He said he thought it would be good for what they are trying to do. And we think it's a wonderful thing."

Fabian And Money

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Singer-actor Fabian, 18, has won court approval of a seven-year contract with 20th Century-Fox that could bring him $150,000 a movie.

Under the agreement, approved yesterday in Superior Court, Fabian will receive $40,000 for each of two pictures to be filmed this year.

His salary will increase annually to $150,000 if 20th exercises its options.

Dominican Fighting

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Fighting broke out last night as Trujillo supporters struck back at leftists who staged the first anti-government demonstration in the Dominican Republic in 31 years.

Followers of slain dictator Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo invaded the headquarters of the opposition Dominican Popular Movement, wrecked the furniture and set the building afire.

The clashes erupted in the center of the capital.

The outbreaks occurred during the first day of open opposition political activity permitted by the successors of the dictator.

Weakened Storms

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Blustery thunderstorms soaked isolated sections of Texas and the South today in a weakened sequel to yesterday's killer lightning and flash floods.

An expansive high pressure dome edged south across the Great Lakes, dropping temperatures 15 degrees in lower Michigan and into the 40s and 50s in the lakes states.

In the South, a weak low pressure center lay off the South Carolina coast at the eastern end of a stationary squall line extending to northern Texas and central New Mexico.

Algeria Explosions

ALGIERS (UPI) — Rightwing European extremists rattled Algerian cities with a dozen explosions and attacked Moslems last night in retaliation for rebel Moslem rioting earlier this week.

Despite the continued violence, President Charles de Gaulle went ahead with his plans to reduce the size of the French Army in Algeria.

The vanguard of 400 men and 200 vehicles of the 11th "Intervention" Division arrived in Marseilles yesterday. Another 2,000 men equipped with armored vehicles and helicopters are on their way across the Mediterranean.

'Cold Gray Bars'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A recording of the song, "Cold Gray Bars," written by Spade Cooley while in jail awaiting trial for his wife's murder, will be issued next week, it was announced today.

Capitol Records said the song was recorded today here by singer Ned Miller.

Cooley, in the song, included the lyric:

"Cold gray bars for windows, cold gray walls for view, makes no difference, darling, all I see is you; your sweet face will haunt me all the days of my life, can't you know I love you, My dear, darling wife."

Teen Dance Tomorrow At Terra Linda High

The San Rafael Recreation Department will sponsor a junior teen dance tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Terra Linda High School cafeteria.

The dance will be open to persons 12 to 15 years old who reside in the San Rafael High School District. Admission costs 10 cents, and girls are requested to wear skirts, Dennis Sullivan, department supervisor, said.

COMPETING CUBAN BEAUTY

Some good news was reported on the Cuban refugee front last night. Curvaceous 25-year-old Marta Garcia Vieta was chosen "Miss Free Cuba" and will compete in the Miss Universe contest at Miami Beach July 15. Son Uncertain About Death Of Hemingway

COMBINED UPI & AP

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — The eldest son of the late novelist Ernest Hemingway said yesterday even he can't be certain whether his father shot himself deliberately or accidentally last Sunday.

John Hemingway, of Mill Valley, Calif., questioned by newsmen as he and his brother Gregory prepared to go fishing, said:

"It's a shame, but I don't think anyone can say either way. How does anyone know? It was against his basic way of thinking. But who can say what happened."

NEWS STORY

A Seattle newspaper said in a copyrighted story today that the author "deliberately ended his own life."

The story by Seattle Post-Intelligencer's Emmett Watson, said Hemingway "placed the shotgun muzzle in his mouth and deliberately killed himself." The paper said it learned the details "authoritatively."

John Hemingway said his father's widow may hold a news conference in a few days to clear up some "historical inaccuracies."

CORONER

After Hemingway was found dead of shotgun blasts in his Ketchum home Sunday the coroner reported the wound was self-inflicted, but left in doubt whether the action was accidental or suicide.

Watson said in his story:

"It was learned authoritatively today that Hemingway, who recently returned from the Mayo Clinic in ailing health, placed the shotgun muzzle in his mouth and deliberately killed himself."

Watson did not disclose the source of his information.

WEAPON

He said the death weapon was a silver-inlaid double-barrelled shotgun with a hammerless, tandem trigger mechanism. Both barrels had been fired.

At Ketchum, Idaho, coroner Ray McGoldrick insisted again today—as he has all along — that there were no witnesses, that it can never be definitely established beyond doubt whether the shooting was an accident or suicide.

He said the shotgun blast entered the head, but there could be no determination where—at the mouth, the ear or the forehead.

The coroner said he is not going to do any speculating.

Germany's Coming Election

BY WELLINGTON LONG

BONN (UPI)—The West German parliamentary elections are still more than two months off, but all candidates already are deep in their political campaigns.

WILLY BRANDT
The young

Willy Brandt, Lord Mayor of West Berlin and head of the Socialist ticket, acts as if he is sure the free sector will survive despite the stepped-up Communist threats against his domain.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, 85-year old head of the Christian Democratic Union, already has stumped Stuttgart and Frankfurt to pitch for the votes of women and young people.

Erich Mende, chief of the Liberal Free Democrats and generally considered the most photogenic of the candidates, holds news conferences at every opportunity and misses no chance to appear on television.

Brandt has just wound up a six-weeks whistlestop "Meet Willy Brandt" tour of the provinces. But the 46-year-old mayor of West Berlin, fearful of over exposure, has announced that he will throw his campaign into low gear until mid-August when he will open what he hopes will be a smashing finish to his vote-getting efforts.

Politics here is not unlike the great game in the United States, and already there is evidence of political skullduggery. Some of it has been attributed to Adenauer's party.

Last week, a whole series of rumors that must have been centrally inspired swept West Germany. The Free Democrats had a secret aggreement with the Socialists to form a post-election coalition and oust the popular Adenauer, the whispers said.

At one point, newspapers received numerous calls from persons pretending to be leaders of the Free Democrats who confirmed the charges.

Free Democratic leader Thomas Dehler claimed the whole whispering campaign had been started by Adenauer personally.

Meanwhile, ministers in the chancellor's cabinet began dropping hints that the Socialists were forced to drop plans to link Brandt's name with President John F. Kennedy's during the campaign.

KONRAD ADENAUER
The oldtimer

According to the story told by Adenauer's ministers—but never for attribution—the Socialists decided the image of an American president using crutches and embarrassed by a defeat in Cuba would be a serious setback to Brandt's chances of victory.

The Socialists insist heatedly that this was untrue.

But whatever the reason, Brandt goes barnstorming for days without mentioning that he is the Socialist candidate. Instead, he underscores that he is mayor of free Germany's bastion in Berlin and soft pedals his party's ideology.

There seems to be little doubt that the election campaign in Germany will follow every twist and turn familiar to American politicians before the voters here go to the polls.

Australia Set For Antartica Conference

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI)—Delegates to the 12-nation International Antarctic Conference are expected to elect Australian Navy Minister Sen. John Gorton chairman when it opens here next week.

Gorton heads the team of Australian scientists sent to the two week conference, which will plan the international exchange of scientific information, radio communications and the conservation of resources in the frozen Antarctic.

The delegates will consider Antarctica's problems in Parliament House here. Sixty-four delegates and advisors will participate in the conference, set up in a treaty signed in Washington on Jan. 12, 1959.

The U.S., Russia, Great Britain and nine other countries agreed in the treaty to set Antarctica aside as a scientific preserve free of military activities.

Delegates will report conference decisions back to their home government for action.

Weddings At Sea Legal But Risky

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Many a romance springs up during an ocean voyage and one of the most common requests a ship's captain hears is, "Can you marry us?"

Matson Lines reports ships' captains do have the authority to marry—as well as to bury—but today's legal technicalities make the romantic notion of a marriage at sea a bit risky, except in an emergency.

If a ship is bound for a foreign port, rulings are a bit more relaxed. But captains are still reluctant to perform a marriage ceremony because the legality of such marriages is sure to be questioned in the event of later problems, like estate settlements.

Boat Was Parked On Wrong Side Of Street

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — During a heavy rain here, police got a complaint that a boat was illegally parked at a West Side intersection.

Patrolmen, envisioning a flooded street, rushed to the intersection. They found a rowboat illegally parked. It was mounted on a trailer.

'X' Stands For Staff Courtesy

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Workers at St. Joseph Hospital here are wearing a big "X" on their clothes to help promote the Golden Rule. The "X" stands for courtesy, according to Sister Alfreda, hospital administrator.

"The staff feels the need for courtesy in the broadest sense," she said, "which includes genuine understanding, sympathy, concern and love."

Sister Alfreda said that the hospital wanted not only to provide the best possible medical and physical care, but also "warmth, interest and concern, so important to the well-being of the patient."

Johnson Says America Is Winning Cold War

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said last night the tide of history is not running against the free way of life and that the United States is winning the Cold War rather than losing it.

"Let no American—let no man, no leader on either side of the Iron Curtain — believe for a moment that the tide of history is running against the free way of life," Johnson said. "We stand closer than we ever stood on the edge of victory."

Johnson said in a speech before 1,300 persons at the convention of the Texas Bar Assn. that it is this prospect of freedom's success that precipitates communist tests of our determination.

He outlined three ways to keep ahead of communism:

"We should continue our policies of strength.

"Push forward efforts to divide communism from its natural allies of poverty, ignorance and disease.

"And continue to have faith and confidence."

Johnson said Communism failed in an effort to exploit the unrest in The Congo.

"The facts are that today the Communists' efforts to take over and exploit the unrest there and elsewhere in Africa have been decisively rejected," Johnson said.

He also said he was "weary" of reports that Russia and Red China were seriously at odds. He again warned the Soviet Union that the United States will stand behind West Berlin "to the last syllable of our obligation."

Johnson said the United States will continue to regard Russia and China as "unrepentent trouble-makers . . . and the things that unite them are stronger than the things that divide them."

Clean-Up Man Lost In Store Shuffle

BALTIMORE (AP)—At a big downtown department store, a new janitor was told to "go over into the other building and clean up the basement."

He did. He went through the store's adjacent building, across a narrow alley and into a rival department store, where he spent the day doing a dandy clean-up job.

No one at the store which hired him asked where he was. No one at the other store asked who he was or what he was doing.

Home Loan Bill Signed By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy has signed legislation making it possible for thousands more ex-servicemen to obtain direct loans from the U.S. Treasury. It also postponed the termination of GI housing programs.

The law signed yesterday:

1. Raised from $13,500 to $15,000 the maximum federal loan available to any individual home buyer.

2. Made available up to 1.2 billion dollars in additional federal funds for home loans to ex-servicemen in designated rural areas over the next six years.

3. Postponed the termination of GI housing programs by six to 10 years, giving additional thousands more time to qualify for the loans.

The deadline for World War II veterans was extended six years, from July 25, 1962, to July 25, 1967. For Korean veterans, the deadline was extended from Jan. 31, 1965, to Jan. 31, 1975.

The funds for direct federal lending provided by the new law are restricted to veterans in the designated areas who cannot obtain mortgage money from private lenders at 5¼ per cent interest or less.

Son Uncertain About Death Of Hemingway

COMBINED UPI & AP

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — The eldest son of the late novelist Ernest Hemingway said yesterday even he can't be certain whether his father shot himself deliberately or accidentally last Sunday.

John Hemingway, of Mill Valley, Calif., questioned by newsmen as he and his brother Gregory prepared to go fishing, said:

"It's a shame, but I don't think anyone can say either way. How does anyone know? It was against his basic way of thinking. But who can say what happened."

NEWS STORY

A Seattle newspaper said in a copyrighted story today that the author "deliberately ended his own life."

The story by Seattle Post-Intelligencer's Emmett Watson, said Hemingway "placed the shotgun muzzle in his mouth and deliberately killed himself." The paper said it learned the details "authoritatively."

John Hemingway said his father's widow may hold a news conference in a few days to clear up some "historical inaccuracies."

CORONER

After Hemingway was found dead of shotgun blasts in his Ketchum home Sunday the coroner reported the wound was self-inflicted, but left in doubt whether the action was accidental or suicide.

Watson said in his story:

Civil War Start Of Panama Hats

The Civil War centennial influence is going to men's heads. That is, it's causing a revival of interest in the Panama hat.

A legend linking the hat to the Civil War holds that a young Louisiana-born officer serving with a Tennessee regiment received a large package from New Orleans. It was a wide-brimmed Panama hat, sent to him by his mother. His fellow officers, uncomfortably hot in their beaver hats, admired the Panama and ordered their own — regulations be hanged.

Before long, most gentlemen in the South were wearing them. The 1961 version is narrow of brim.

Margaret's Social Life Goes On

LONDON, (UPI) — Princess Margaret is expecting a baby some time in October, but she is not letting her pregnancy interfere with her social life too much.

When Buckingham Palace announced on May 25 that Margaret was expecting a baby in October, the Princess was visiting a London hospital. Since then, she has been to the theater, visited the Ascot Races and attended the Duke of Kent's wedding in York.

The Princess passed up a Buckingham Palace garden party and spent six hours in London's Aldwyck Theater with her husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones, watching a dress rehearsal and then a regular evening performance of another play.

The dress rehearsal was given by the Royal Shakespeare Company for its production of "Becket." The evening play was Peggy Ashcroft's "The Hollow Crown."

After sitting in the empty theater all afternoon, the Princess and Tony went home to change for the evening engagement.

During the afternoon, the Princess gave evidence that Tony has succeeded in interesting her in photography.

Tony, who was in shirtsleeves, leaned over the rail to get a good angle for a picture. Then Margaret took her camera in hand and proceeded to shoot some pictures herself.

The couple sat with actress Leslie Caron, wife of the director, Peter Hall.

Honor Classes Were Set Up To Provide Scholastic Meat

Honor classes may be helpful or harmful. Has your teen-ager taken a high school honors class? Or maybe several of them? What do you think of honors classes now?

It was one of a committee of experts called to Washington several years ago to suggest ways to improve high schools. The Sputnik had gone up and everyone was worried. I recall one of the Washington proposals was for schools to develop honors classes. We hoped to enrich the education of the brighter kids. The suggestions caught on and thousands of honors classes were established. Now it is time to judge them.

Critics say honors classes are mismanaged. They claim the teachers merely pile more homework on overloaded students. They object to the grades given. They say honors pupils get "B's" or "C's" when they could earn "A's" in regular courses. They say honors classes teach children how to memorize, but not how to think.

Are the critics right or wrong? Please write and tell me how you feel. Was your teen-ager's honors class work good or bad? If you had it to do over again would you have him take honors classes? Can you suggest improvements? Ask your friends whose children have been in honors classes to write to me too. I'll publish a summary of your opinions in September. Your suggestions can influence next year's honors classes. My name is Richard Barbour. My address is in care of this paper. Thanks for writing, friends.

(Q)—"My son is in a summer high school civics class. Pupils study from daily newspapers. They have no textbooks. Is this a good way to teach?—J.C.

(A) It is not the best way. There are several good civics textbooks. Any one of them would give a more complete picture than newspapers can give.

Ambulance Zoning To Supervisors

Proposed new emergency ambulance zoning is to be discussed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors when it meets at 9 a.m. Monday.

Not mentioned on the agenda but believed foremost of these is the question of salary boosts for some 30 "fifth step" employees who have been in county employ for at least 10 years with no promotion for five years.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos spoke against the plan a few days ago but was told he wouldn't be against it if he were shown the full picture.

Communications will start the regular afternoon session at 2 p.m., with bids to be opened at 3 p.m. for movable partitions and custom furnishings at the new civic center.

No Tuesday morning session is scheduled but the afternoon meeting, which is to start at 1 p.m., is expected to see a decision on a new county treasurer to succeed M. F. Donohue, resigned.

Bids will be opened on San Anselmo and Mill Valley school bonds.

McPhail's of San Rafael is expected to get a decision on its effort to locate a butane storage tank at Point Reyes Station.

Senior Assn. Appeals For Kent School

The Marin Senior Assn., faced with loss of its free meeting facilities in San Anselmo, yesterday applied to use the Kent School in Kentfield for two Saturday meetings each month.

The seniors asked the school's multi-use room from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Saturdays. The application was made by Ethel Bryce of San Anselmo, representing the seniors.

The seniors have been meeting in the auditorium of Isabel Cook School. However, the San Anselmo School District board last week set a new policy of permitting free use of school facilities only to organizations made up wholly of San Anselmans (the Marin Senior Assn. is county-wide). The board decreed the seniors must pay $10 per hour for use of the meeting room, but cut this to $2.50 per hour until September.

Kentfield School District has a policy of letting non-profit groups use school facilities without charge, paying the cost from the district's five-cent community services tax.

in his room and fully clothed, saw Lisa floating face down in the pool. He dashed outside, snatched the child from the water and began applying respiration. Within a few minutes the youngster was breathing again.

She was taken by her mother and Thomas to Marin General Hospital where she arrived in good condition, was examined and sent home.

Lisa's father, Ronald McClure, is an Air Force jet mechanic stationed in Japan.

Swimming Class Registration

Registration for a five-week adult swimming class will be held Monday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the San Rafael High School pool.

The lessons will be given from 6:30 to 7:30 Monday and Wednesday evenings. Those registering should be prepared to swim the first night, Dennis Sullivan, San Rafael Recreation Department supervisor, said.

Charnow 'Improving'

Manny Charnow of San Rafael was reported improving today at Marin General Hospital. Charnow, "Mr. Senior Citizen of Marin," underwent surgery Wednesday for removal of part of his left lung. He has been hospitalized for a month.

DOCTOR

Health getting a master of public health degree in epidemiology.

He is now on active duty with the Public Health Service, assigned to the encephalitis laboratory in Berkeley.

"Epidemiology," he said "is the study of who gets a disease, when and where they get and how it is transmitted. It is a tool used in the study of any disease." He added that work done with yellow fever in Cuba and in the canal zone is a classical example of epidemiological study.

Some people, commented Dr. Mackenzie, say you cannot start with under-developed nations by treating their health but must first bolster their economy. "That is true in a certain way," he said, "but knowledge of diseases must be acquired so that, when social and economic conditions improve, something can be done about health."

Dr. Mackenzie, a native of Cumberland, Wis., has been active in community affairs during his Sausalito residence. He was president of the Sausalito Rotary Club one year, a director of the Sausalito Little Theater for two years and vice president of the Sausalito Parent-Teacher Assn. one year.

He became a doctor after starting a career in marine engineering. He served as a Merchant Marine cadet in 1943-44, then was a Navy officer for two years, seeing service in the Philippines, Japan and China. He came to Marin as a Navy deep sea diver stationed at the Tiburon Naval Net Depot.

Then, after receiving a degree in marine engineering from the Merchant Marine Academy, he entered medical study at University of Wisconsin.

He came to Sausalito in 1954. His home is at 409 Bonita Avenue.

The doctor said he misses the relationship with patients in private practice but finds his new field "a most satisfactory one."

termed an "economy block" member, as does Fusselman.

Supervisor William Gnoss's brother George works under Jones and is considered a logical successor on Jones's retirement at the ned of his present term. Jones has a bargaining point on this in getting Supervisor Gnoss on the Morrison band wagon.

Whether Supervisor Walter R. Castro feels strongly one way or another is not known. There are reasons why he might incline toward a candidate tied to de Lisle rather than one backed by Jones, it is believed.

There have been rumors that other candidates might appear. The matter has drifted while Donohue, who wants some vacation before going out for keeps, has been increasingly impatient. Receipt of the Fontez letter at least brings the issue before the board.

Gives Up Medicine To Become Lawyer

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Fred H. Walker had a tough time choosing between the medical and legal fields when it came time to pick a life's career several years ago. He is finally about to solve this inner conflict by being both a doctor and a lawyer.

Upon graduation from the University of Mississippi, Walker settled on medical school. After winning a medical degree from Baylor University in 1954, he established a general practice in his hometown of Gulfport, Miss.

But his interest in law continued and recently Walker, now 35 and the father of four, gave up the practice to enter the University of Mississippi law school.

Banner Stone Is Uncovered

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — David Norwood, 9, had never seen a stone like the one he found in some dirt pushed up on the grounds of Union Theological Seminary here.

His friend, Freddie Morgan, thought his dad might know.

And Frederick H. Morgan, a past president of the Archaeological Society of Virginia, saw it was something he had been looking for all his life—a banner stone used by Indians as a counterbalance for a throwing stick before the days of bows and arrows.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D.
Guidance Counselor

Honor Classes Were Set Up To Provide Scholastic Meat

Honor classes may be helpful or harmful. Has your teen-ager taken a high school honors class? Or maybe several of them? What do you think of honors classes now?

It was one of a committee of experts called to Washington several years ago to suggest ways to improve high schools. The Sputnik had gone up and everyone was worried. I recall one of the Washington proposals was for schools to develop honors classes. We hoped to enrich the education of the brighter kids. The suggestions caught on and thousands of honors classes were established. Now it is time to judge them.

Critics say honors classes are mismanaged. They claim the teachers merely pile more homework on overloaded students. They object to the grades given. They say honors pupils get "B's" or "C's" when they could earn "A's" in regular courses. They say honors classes teach children how to memorize, but not how to think.

Are the critics right or wrong? Please write and tell me how you feel. Was your teen-ager's honors class work good or bad? If you had it to do over again would you have him take honors classes? Can you suggest improvements? Ask your friends whose children have been in honors classes to write to me too. I'll publish a summary of your opinions in September. Your suggestions can influence next year's honors classes. My name is Richard Barbour. My address is in care of this paper. Thanks for writing, friends.

READERS' FORUM

(Q)—"My son is in a summer high school civics class. Pupils study from daily newspapers. They have no textbooks. Is this a good way to teach?—J.C.

(A) It is not the best way. There are several good civics textbooks. Any one of them would give a more complete picture than newspapers can give.

Ambulance Zoning To Supervisors

Proposed new emergency ambulance zoning is to be discussed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors when it meets at 9 a.m. Monday.

Not mentioned on the agenda but believed foremost of these is the question of salary boosts for some 30 "fifth step" employees who have been in county employ for at least 10 years with no promotion for five years.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos spoke against the plan a few days ago but was told he wouldn't be against it if he were shown the full picture.

Communications will start the regular afternoon session at 2 p.m., with bids to be opened at 3 p.m. for movable partitions and custom furnishings at the new civic center.

No Tuesday morning session is scheduled but the afternoon meeting, which is to start at 1 p.m., is expected to see a decision on a new county treasurer to succeed M. F. Donohue, resigned.

Bids will be opened on San Anselmo and Mill Valley school bonds.

McPhail's of San Rafael is expected to get a decision on its effort to locate a butane storage tank at Point Reyes Station.

Senior Assn. Appeals For Kent School

The Marin Senior Assn., faced with loss of its free meeting facilities in San Anselmo, yesterday applied to use the Kent School in Kentfield for two Saturday meetings each month.

The seniors asked the school's multi-use room from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Saturdays. The application was made by Ethel Bryce of San Anselmo, representing the seniors.

The seniors have been meeting in the auditorium of Isabel Cook School. However, the San Anselmo School District board last week set a new policy of permitting free use of school facilities only to organizations made up wholly of San Anselmans (the Marin Senior Assn. is county-wide). The board decreed the seniors must pay $10 per hour for use of the meeting room, but cut this to $2.50 per hour until September.

Kentfield School District has a policy of letting non-profit groups use school facilities without charge, paying the cost from the district's five-cent community services tax.

in his room and fully clothed, saw Lisa floating face down in the pool. He dashed outside, snatched the child from the water and began applying respiration. Within a few minutes the youngster was breathing again.

She was taken by her mother and Thomas to Marin General Hospital where she arrived in good condition, was examined and sent home.

Lisa's father, Ronald McClure, is an Air Force jet mechanic stationed in Japan.

Swimming Class Registration

Registration for a five-week adult swimming class will be held Monday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the San Rafael High School pool.

The lessons will be given from 6:30 to 7:30 Monday and Wednesday evenings. Those registering should be prepared to swim the first night, Dennis Sullivan, San Rafael Recreation Department supervisor, said.

Charnow 'Improving'

Manny Charnow of San Rafael was reported improving today at Marin General Hospital. Charnow, "Mr. Senior Citizen of Marin," underwent surgery Wednesday for removal of part of his left lung. He has been hospitalized for a month.

Health getting a master of public health degree in epidemiology.

He is now on active duty with the Public Health Service, assigned to the encephalitis laboratory in Berkeley.

"Epidemiology," he said "is the study of who gets a disease, when and where they get and how it is transmitted. It is a tool used in the study of any disease." He added that work done with yellow fever in Cuba and in the canal zone is a classical example of epidemiological study.

Some people, commented Dr. Mackenzie, say you cannot start with under-developed nations by treating their health but must first bolster their economy. "That is true in a certain way," he said, "but knowledge of diseases must be acquired so that, when social and economic conditions improve, something can be done about health."

Dr. Mackenzie, a native of Cumberland, Wis., has been active in community affairs during his Sausalito residence. He was president of the Sausalito Rotary Club one year, a director of the Sausalito Little Theater for two years and vice president of the Sausalito Parent-Teacher Assn. one year.

He became a doctor after starting a career in marine engineering. He served as a Merchant Marine cadet in 1943-44, then was a Navy officer for two years, seeing service in the Philippines, Japan and China. He came to Marin as a Navy deep sea diver stationed at the Tiburon Naval Net Depot.

Then, after receiving a degree in marine engineering from the Merchant Marine Academy, he entered medical study at University of Wisconsin.

He came to Sausalito in 1954. His home is at 409 Bonita Avenue.

The doctor said he misses the relationship with patients in private practice but finds his new field "a most satisfactory one."

termed an "economy block" member, as does Fusselman.

Supervisor William Gnoss's brother George works under Jones and is considered a logical successor on Jones's retirement at the ned of his present term. Jones has a bargaining point on this in getting Supervisor Gnoss on the Morrison band wagon.

Whether Supervisor Walter R. Castro feels strongly one way or another is not known. There are reasons why he might incline toward a candidate tied to de Lisle rather than one backed by Jones, it is believed.

There have been rumors that other candidates might appear. The matter has drifted while Donohue, who wants some vacation before going out for keeps, has been increasingly impatient. Receipt of the Fontez letter at least brings the issue before the board.

Gives Up Medicine To Become Lawyer

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI)—Fred H. Walker had a tough time choosing between the medical and legal fields when it came time to pick a life's career several years ago. He is finally about to solve this inner conflict by being both a doctor and a lawyer.

Upon graduation from the University of Mississippi, Walker settled on medical school. After winning a medical degree from Baylor University in 1954, he established a general practice in his hometown of Gulfport, Miss.

But his interest in law continued and recently Walker, now 35 and the father of four, gave up the practice to enter the University of Mississippi law school.

Banner Stone Is Uncovered

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — David Norwood, 9, had never seen a stone like the one he found in some dirt pushed up on the grounds of Union Theological Seminary here.

His friend, Freddie Morgan, thought his dad might know.

And Frederick H. Morgan, a past president of the Archaeological Society of Virginia, saw it was something he had been looking for all his life—a banner stone used by Indians as a counterbalance for a throwing stick before the days of bows and arrows.

Eureka Whips San Rafael In Tournament Showdown

Crabs Prevail By 7-2; S.R. Still Has A Chance

Humboldt Crabs from Eureka capitalized on three unearned runs in the first four innings and went on to defeat the San Rafael Merchants 7-2 last night in the California State Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament's "showdown" game at Albert Park, San Rafael.

Under the tournament's double elimination "second chance" rules, San Rafael still has another shot at the title. The Merchants return tomorrow at 2 p.m. against either Acme Carpets of Oakland or the Richmond Ramblers, whichever wins tonight's 8 o'clock game.

The winner of tomorrow's 2 p.m. tilt then will return at 8 o'clock against the Humboldt Crabs who now have a 3-0 record as compared to San Rafael's 3-1.

Manager Al Endriss of San Rafael said hard throwing righthander Lou Profumo would start tomorrow's afternoon tilt. "If we win, then I'll use Dave Blasquez against Humboldt tomorrow night," he said.

DEFENSIVE COLLAPSE

Endriss started veteran Ken Kimball last night and the former pro star was betrayed by a defensive collapse in the first four innings. Norm Kreuter dropped a routine fly in right field in the first frame to enable the Crabs to take a 1-0 lead and error by Rich Curry at second base and Kreuter again opened the gates for two more unearned tallies in the fourth as the Eurekans took a 3-0 lead.

Kreuter partly atoned for his errors in the fifth by blasting a solo home run and, after the Crabs added a run in the seventh for a 4-1 edge, the Merchants looked like they would rout Humboldt lefty ace Bob Doig in the eighth.

RALLY KILLED

With one out little Don Lauters drilled a double, his third hit of the night, and classy shortstop Don Murray followed with a screaming triple. However, the umpire ruled Murray failed to touch second base, called him out, and killed the threat right there. Doig set a tournament record by striking out 14 batters in his seven-hitter. Kimball fanned eight and gave up 11 hits.

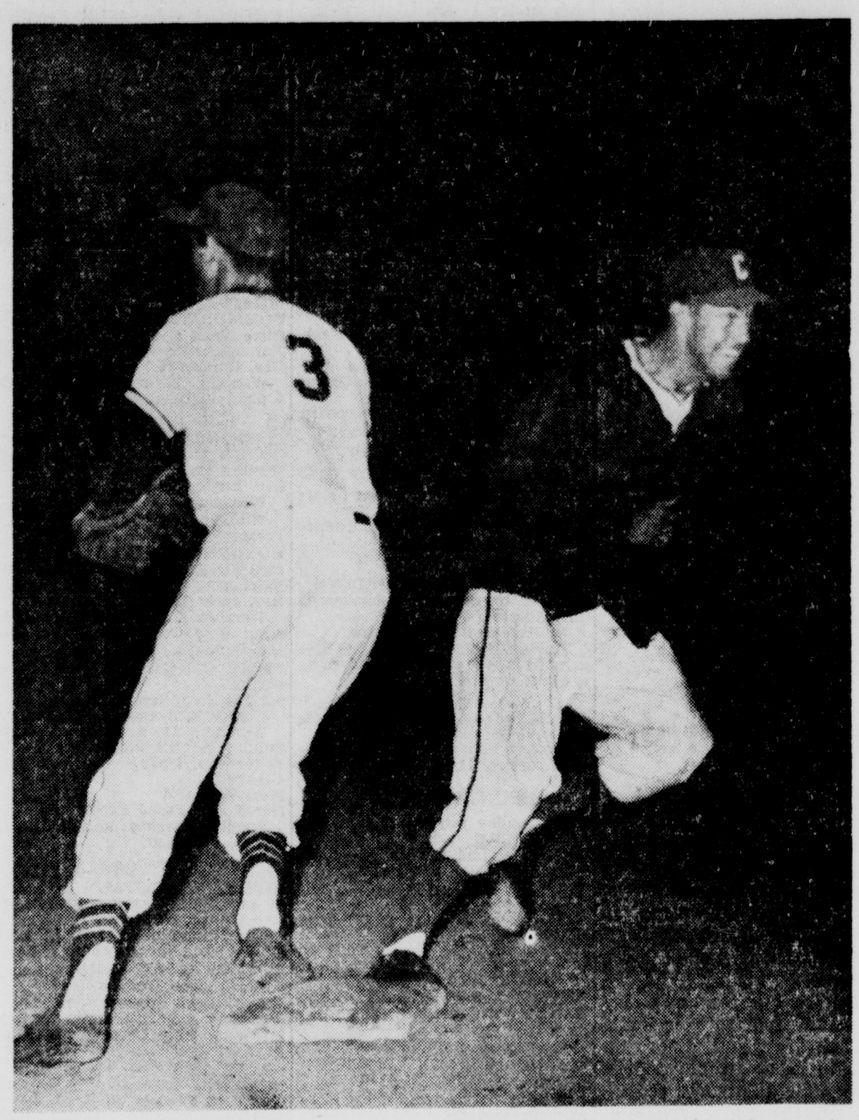
Eureka broke the game wide open in the bottom of the eighth by slamming across three runs.

The crowd of 700, largest of the tourney, was treated to an excellent game that was close until the bottom of the eighth. San Rafael first baseman Russ Adams and third sacker Dan Renari made fabulous defensive plays. Adams, the Tamalpais High School star, stretched flat on the ground twice to scoop low throws. "He looks like a ballet dancer," said Endriss, "I've never seen a kid stretch out like he does."

Endriss concluded, "We'd sure like another crack at Humboldt."

Maybe they'll get the chance tomorrow night.

In last night's opener of the double-header the Richmond Ramblers pushed across a run in the 10th inning to nip Walnut Creek, 4-3.



PICTURE PROOF—Humboldt pitcher Bob Doig rounds third base and heads for home to score a run during his team's 7-2 victory over the San Rafael Merchants last night. San Rafael players protested to the umpire that Doig missed touching third base, but Karl Barron's photo indicates he did touch the bag. Third baseman is Dan Renari.

MARIN SWIM STAR SMASHES AMERICAN MARK

Ken Frost, Marin County's standout competitive swimmer, clearly established himself as one of the top breaststroke artists in the nation this week as he smashed the AAU American men's 100-meter record in a sensational performance at Livermore High School pool.

Frost's time, to be submitted as the new American record by his coach, Beth Kaufman, was one minute, 13.8 seconds, well below the 1:15.0 standard set a year ago by Ralph Kendrick of San Leandro.

The record swim was a highlight of three AAU meets in which Frost's teammates on the Marin Pirates swim club competed last week. They stroked out an easy victory over the Livermore Aquacowboys in a dual meet, 317 to 153, to complete the day Wednesday.

Morning Star Ends Race To Tahiti

HONOLULU (UPI) — The 96-foot ketch Morning Star, owned by Ingrid Bergman's son-in-law Fuller Callaway of San Francisco, crossed the finish line at 3:30 a.m. today to be the first boat to complete the Los Angeles-Tahiti Yacht Race, radio reports said.

Less than three hours behind the Morning Star, according to the reports, was John P. Scripps' 89-foot Novia Del Mar, also a ketch, from San Diego.

The Novia Del Mar cleared the finish line of the world's longest yacht race at 6:05 a.m.

Jim Willhite's 64-foot yawl, Athene, sailing out of the St. Francis Yacht Club, San Francisco, was expected to cross tonight. Because of the handicap Athene received for the 3,300-mile race, she was believed leading on corrected time.

About 12 hours behind the Athene was another San Francisco boat, the 64-foot yawl, Good News, owned by John Hedden.

Other boats in the race were still a good distance out at sea.

WEEKEND YACHTING

Marin Regatta Tomorrow; Folkboat Skippers Vie

By ALFRED MATSON

The fleets of 110's, Zephyrs and Mercuries will be out in full strength tomorrow on Richardson Bay competing in a two-race program sponsored by the Sausalito Yacht Club.

These classes represent Division 4 in the Small Boat Racing Assn.'s groupings. The morning race has been set for 10:30 and the afternoon contest at 1:30. All starts and finishes will be in Richardson Bay.

The smaller boats in Divisions 1, 2 and 3 were scheduled to race down at the Sequoia Y. C. in Redwood City but, unfortunately, the facilities there were not ready and the program was postponed.

TODAY AND tomorrow, the Folkboaters are putting on a Round Robin nine-race series with nine entries, three each from San Francisco, East Bay and Marin County areas. All races will start and finish off the Golden Gate Y. C.

The skippers and crews will be aboard a different boat for every race. Team races of this type can prove highly interesting for the spectator. Two of the boats will attempt to get the third member free and clear and then ambush the competition.

IF EVER a sailor made a "pier head jump," it was Mike Figour, Tiburon's top flight 110 skipper. Mike was quite pleased with his summer program what with a scheduled jet trip to Honolulu and then sailing back home as a crew member aboard the Tyboon, one of the Honolulu race entries.

Then on the night of July 3 he received a phone call from Los Angeles. It was Warwick Tompkins of Mill Valley and a crewman on the Ondine, a 57-foot yawl from New York. Could Mike fly down and take the place of Pete Fromhagen, who, at the last minute was compelled to withdraw from the crew because of business matters? Needless to say the answer was a big YES.

Confusion reigned supreme in the Figour household for the next hour, or so, but Mike, by midnight, was aboard a plane and with all his gear, he hoped. And a special shore boat put him on the Ondine as it was easing its way toward the starting line. A good definition of a "pier head jump."

Gentile Ties A.L. Grand Slam Mark

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Gentile has added a lop-sided baseball to his trophy collection.

The ball was retrieved from a bleacher fan last night after the Baltimore first baseman mashed it out of shape on his record-tying fourth grand slam home run of the season.

The pinch-hit, 400-foot homer put him into the record book with six other American League players who hit four grand slams in one season — Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Rudy York, Tom Henrich, Al Rosen and Ray Boone. The major league record of five is held by Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs.

Gentile came to bat with one out in the sixth inning of the twi-night opener and the score tied 2-2. His clout gave the Orioles a 6-2 win.

Reds Threaten To Run Away And Hide With N.L. Pennant

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Reds have an eight-game winning streak and a five-game lead at the moment—the biggest bulge any National League club has had at this stage in six years.

And they've done it by running over the suspected contenders, the clubs that were picked for the pennant while the Reds were plunked in the second division in the pre-season selections.

The Reds knocked off the second place Dodgers, 11-7 and 4-1, in a twi-night doubleheader last night before 68,742 at the Los Angeles Coliseum, a record night-game gathering in the N.L.

That shot Cincinnati 8½ games ahead of the third place San Francisco Giants, who lost 3-2 to St. Louis. The Pittsburgh Pirates beat Milwaukee 6-5 and Chicago's Cubs whipped Philadelphia 9-3.

In the American League, the New York Yankees climbed back on top by walloping Boston 14-3 while the Los Angeles Angels dropped Detroit to second by a half-game with a 4-2 victory over the Tigers. Baltimore beat Kansas City twice, 6-2 and 5-0, and the Cleveland Indians rapped the Chicago White Sox 9-0. Washington defeated Minnesota 3-0.

FREESE HOMERS

The Reds came from behind in the opener, going ahead 4-3 on a two-run homer by Gene Freese in the third inning off Dodger ace Sandy Koufax (11-5) and then piling up four unearned runs in the fourth after a two-out error by Frank Howard. Rookie Ken Hunt (9-4) gave up three runs in the first inning but beat the Dodgers a second time, with relief help.

Freese also homered in the nightcap, after the Reds had nailed Stan Williams (8-8) for two runs in the fourth. Bob Purkey won this one for an 11-4 record.

Pittsburgh came from behind in the ninth, on a two-run error by Felix Mantilla that beat Warren Spahn (8-11) in relief. Rookie Al McBean won his first after Hank Aaron belted in all of the Braves' runs with a pair of homers off starter Harvey Haddix.

Giants Can't Escape That 3-2 Score Jinx

A disgusted fan walking out of Candlestick Park last night said, "You know, I think I'd like to see the Giants get beat by 20 runs—just to break the monotony."

The St. Louis Cardinals had just beaten the Giants 3-2, the fourth straight game the Giants have lost by the identical score.

Giant Manager Alvin Dark, bewitched, bothered and bewildered, said, "It can't get any worse. There's no easy way to lose—but this!"

Rookie southpaw Dick LeMay (1-1) tried to get the Giants out of their rut today when he faced Cardinal right-hander Larry Jackson (3-8) in the second of the four-game series. Johnny Keane, who replaced Solly Hemus as the Cardinals' manager Thursday night, registered his first victory as a big league skipper.

The Cards did it with two runs in an eerie ninth inning when Stu Miller gave leadoff batter Stan Musial a walk and Don Taussig, who used to be a Giant, followed with a game-tying triple. Three Giant pitchers later, Taussig scored the winning run on a 10-foot drib-bler tapped by Red Schoendienst.

The Giants had taken a 1-0 lead on Ed Bailey's homer in the second inning. They made it 2-0 in the sixth on a single by Matty Alou and a double by Willie Mays.

Billy Loes seemed to be breezing until the Redbirds chased him with three singles and a run in the seventh.

Stu Miller of the Giants put out that fire but ended up the loser and now is 6-2. Lindy McDaniel, who worked the eighth for the Cards, got the win and is 4-3.

Dark used four pitchers in the ninth but only Sam Jones was effective. By the time he arrived the Cards had loaded the bases with none out. Jones inherited a 2-0 count on Curt Flood but struck him out on three pitches. Schoendienst then squished out to Jones, scoring Taussig.

Craig Anderson put the Giants down in order in the ninth but wouldn't keep the ball used for the final out. That went to rookie Manager Keane.

"Nicest trophy I ever saw," winning run on a 10-foot drib-Keane said.

Eureka Whips San Rafael In Tournament Showdown

Crabs Prevail By 7-2; S.R. Still Has A Chance

Humboldt Crabs from Eureka capitalized on three unearned runs in the first four innings and went on to defeat the San Rafael Merchants 7-2 last night in the California State Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament's "showdown" game at Albert Park, San Rafael.

Under the tournament's double elimination "second chance" rules, San Rafael still has another shot at the title. The Merchants return tomorrow at 2 p.m. against either Acme Carpets of Oakland or the Richmond Ramblers, whichever wins tonight's 8 o'clock game.

The winner of tomorrow's 2 p.m. tilt then will return at 8 o'clock against the Humboldt Crabs who now have a 3-0 record as compared to San Rafael's 3-1.

Manager Al Endriss of San Rafael said hard throwing righthander Lou Profumo would start tomorrow's afternoon tilt. "If we win, then I'll use Dave Blasquez against Humboldt tomorrow night," he said.

DEFENSIVE COLLAPSE

Endriss started veteran Ken Kimball last night and the former pro star was betrayed by a defensive collapse in the first four innings. Norm Kreuter dropped a routine fly in right field in the first frame to enable the Crabs to take a 1-0 lead and error by Rich Curry at second base and Kreuter again opened the gates for two more unearned tallies in the fourth as the Eurekans took a 3-0 lead.

Kreuter partly atoned for his errors in the fifth by blasting a solo home run and, after the Crabs added a run in the seventh for a 4-1 edge, the Merchants looked like they would rout Humboldt lefty ace Bob Doig in the eighth.

RALLY KILLED

With one out little Don Lauters drilled a double, his third hit of the night, and classy shortstop Don Murray followed with a screaming triple. However, the umpire ruled Murray failed to touch second base, called him out, and killed the threat right there. Doig set a tournament record by striking out 14 batters in his seven-hitter. Kimball fanned eight and gave up 11 hits.

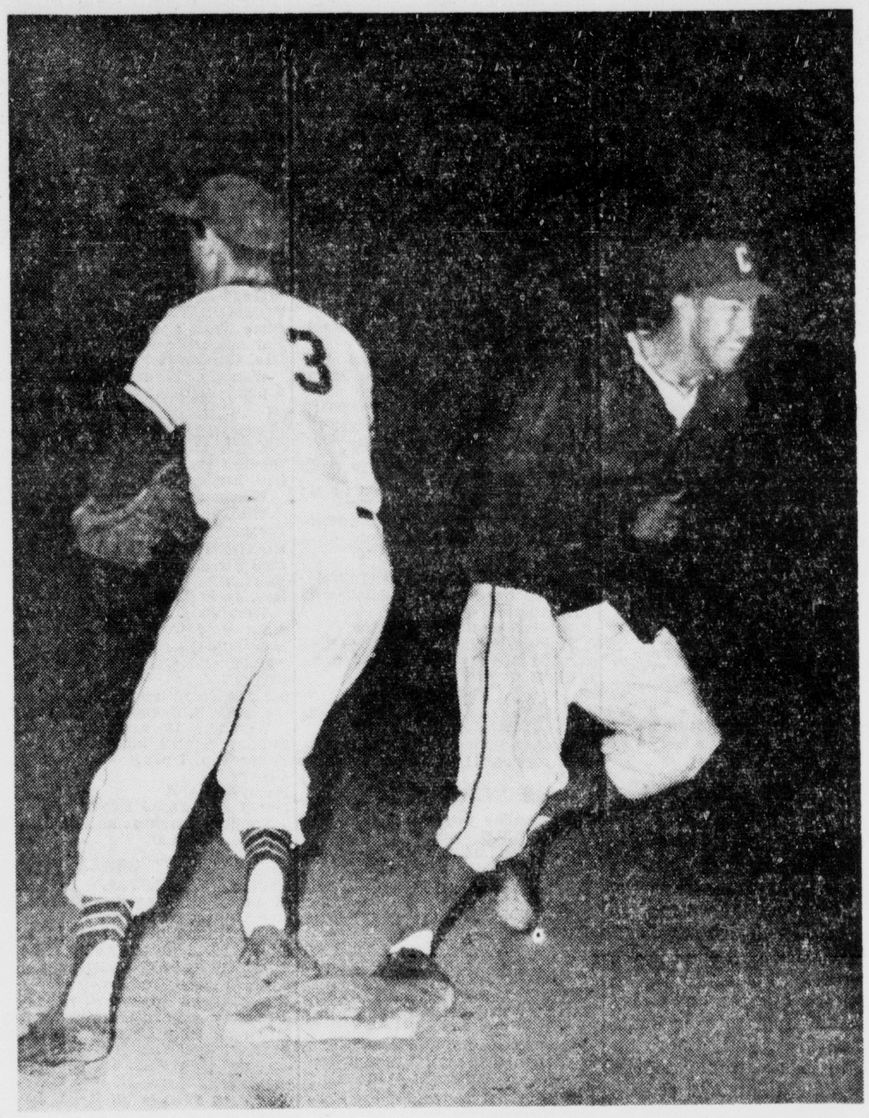
Eureka broke the game wide open in the bottom of the eighth by slamming across three runs.

The crowd of 700, largest of the tourney, was treated to an excellent game that was close until the bottom of the eighth. San Rafael first baseman Russ Adams and third sacker Dan Renari made fabulous defensive plays. Adams, the Tamalpais High School star, stretched flat on the ground twice to scoop low throws. "He looks like a ballet dancer," said Endriss, "I've never seen a kid stretch out like he does."

Endriss concluded, "We'd sure like another crack at Humboldt."

Maybe they'll get the chance tomorrow night.

In last night's opener of the double-header the Richmond Ramblers pushed across a run in the 10th inning to nip Walnut Creek, 4-3.



PICTURE PROOF—Humboldt pitcher Bob Doig rounds third base and heads for home to score a run during his team's 7-2 victory over the San Rafael Merchants last night. San Rafael players protested to the umpire that Doig missed touching third base, but Karl Barron's photo indicates he did touch the bag. Third baseman is Dan Renari.

MARIN SWIM STAR SMASHES AMERICAN MARK

Ken Frost, Marin County's standout competitive swimmer, clearly established himself as one of the top breaststroke artists in the nation this week as he smashed the AAU American men's 100-meter record in a sensational performance at Livermore High School pool.

Frost's time, to be submitted as the new American record by his coach, Beth Kaufman, was one minute, 13.8 seconds, well below the 1:15.0 standard set a year ago by Ralph Kendrick of San Leandro.

The record swim was a highlight of three AAU meets in which Frost's teammates on the Marin Pirates swim club competed last week. They stroked out an easy victory over the Livermore Aquacowboys in a dual meet, 317 to 153, to complete the day Wednesday.

Morning Star Ends Race To Tahiti

HONOLULU (UPI) — The 96-foot ketch Morning Star, owned by Ingrid Bergman's son-in-law Fuller Callaway of San Francisco, crossed the finish line at 3:30 a.m. today to be the first boat to complete the Los Angeles-Tahiti Yacht Race, radio reports said.

Less than three hours behind the Morning Star, according to the reports, was John P. Scripps' 89-foot Novia Del Mar, also a ketch, from San Diego.

The Novia Del Mar cleared the finish line of the world's longest yacht race at 6:05 a.m.

Jim Willhite's 64-foot yawl, Athene, sailing out of the St. Francis Yacht Club, San Francisco, was expected to cross tonight. Because of the handicap Athene received for the 3,300-mile race, she was believed leading on corrected time.

About 12 hours behind the Athene was another San Francisco boat, the 64-foot yawl, Good News, owned by John Hedden.

Other boats in the race were still a good distance out at sea.

WEEKEND YACHTING

Marin Regatta Tomorrow; Folkboat Skippers Vie

By ALFRED MATSON

The fleets of 110's, Zephyrs and Mercuries will be out in full strength tomorrow on Richardson Bay competing in a two-race program sponsored by the Sausalito Yacht Club.

These classes represent Division 4 in the Small Boat Racing Assn.'s groupings. The morning race has been set for 10:30 and the afternoon contest at 1:30. All starts and finishes will be in Richardson Bay.

The smaller boats in Divisions 1, 2 and 3 were scheduled to race down at the Sequoia Y. C. in Redwood City but, unfortunately, the facilities there were not ready and the program was postponed.

TODAY AND tomorrow, the Folkboaters are putting on a Round Robin nine-race series with nine entries, three each from San Francisco, East Bay and Marin County areas. All races will start and finish off the Golden Gate Y. C.

The skippers and crews will be aboard a different boat for every race. Team races of this type can prove highly interesting for the spectator. Two of the boats will attempt to get the third member free and clear and then ambush the competition.

IF EVER a sailor made a "pier head jump," it was Mike Figour, Tiburon's top flight 110 skipper. Mike was quite pleased with his summer program what with a scheduled jet trip to Honolulu and then sailing back home as a crew member aboard the Tyboon, one of the Honolulu race entries.

Then on the night of July 3 he received a phone call from Los Angeles. It was Warwick Tompkins of Mill Valley and a crewman on the Ondine, a 57-foot yawl from New York. Could Mike fly down and take the place of Pete Fromhagen, who, at the last minute was compelled to withdraw from the crew because of business matters? Needless to say the answer was a big YES.

Confusion reigned supreme in the Figour household for the next hour, or so, but Mike, by midnight, was aboard a plane and with all his gear, he hoped. And a special shore boat put him on the Ondine as it was easing its way toward the starting line. A good definition of a "pier head jump."

Gentile Ties A.L. Grand Slam Mark

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Gentile has added a lop-sided baseball to his trophy collection.

The ball was retrieved from a bleacher fan last night after the Baltimore first baseman mashed it out of shape on his record-tying fourth grand slam home run of the season.

The pinch-hit, 400-foot homer put him into the record book with six other American League players who hit four grand slams in one season — Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Rudy York, Tom Henrich, Al Rosen and Ray Boone. The major league record of five is held by Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs.

Gentile came to bat with one out in the sixth inning of the twi-night opener and the score tied 2-2. His clout gave the Orioles a 6-2 win.

Reds Threaten To Run Away And Hide With N.L. Pennant

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Reds have an eight-game winning streak and a five-game lead at the moment —the biggest bulge any National League club has had at this stage in six years.

And they've done it by running over the suspected contenders, the clubs that were picked for the pennant while the Reds were plunked in the second division in the pre-season selections.

The Reds knocked off the second place Dodgers, 11-7 and 4-1, in a twi-night doubleheader last night before 68,742 at the Los Angeles Coliseum, a record night-game gathering in the N.L.

That shot Cincinnati 8½ games ahead of the third place San Francisco Giants, who lost 3-2 to St. Louis. The Pittsburgh Pirates beat Milwaukee 6-5 and Chicago's Cubs whipped Philadelphia 9-3.

In the American League, the New York Yankees climbed back on top by walloping Boston 14-3 while the Los Angeles Angels dropped Detroit to second by a half-game with a 4-2 victory over the Tigers. Baltimore beat Kansas City twice, 6-2 and 5-0, and the Cleveland Indians rapped the Chicago White Sox 9-0. Washington defeated Minnesota 3-0.

FREESE HOMERS

The Reds came from behind in the opener, going ahead 4-3 on a two-run homer by Gene Freese in the third inning off Dodger ace Sandy Koufax (11-5) and then piling up four unearned runs in the fourth after a two-out error by Frank Howard. Rookie Ken Hunt (9-4) gave up three runs in the first inning but beat the Dodgers a second time, with relief help.

Freese also homered in the nightcap, after the Reds had nailed Stan Williams (8-8) for two runs in the fourth. Bob Purkey won this one for an 11-4 record.

Pittsburgh came from behind in the ninth, on a two-run error by Felix Mantilla that beat Warren Spahn (8-11) in relief. Rookie Al McBean won his first after Hank Aaron belted in all of the Braves' runs with a pair of homers off starter Harvey Haddix.

EMPLOYERS FAIL ON RELIGION AIDS

Catholic Magazine Article Says Religious Provisions Needed For 'Migrant' Families

In the July issue of "St. Anthony Messenger," a national Catholic periodical, employers who make no provision for the spiritual and religious life of employees are criticized by Novato writer Paul Brindel.

The article, entitled "Displaced Catholics in the U. S.," deals with what it feels are the lack of provisions for cultural and religious conditions when big companies move groups of employees "en masse" from one community to another. Brindel points out that many company's provide just about everything else for the "migrants."

"Is there any reason why . . . any major employer," writes Brindel, "should not provide public school districts and Protestant and Catholic parochial schools with buildings on a lease or installment purchase basis?"

"Such a program would be self-liquidating," concludes Brindel. "The buildings in most states would be free from local taxes and any monetary loss could be taken as a federal and/or state income tax deduction."

Brindel this month also published in the "Messenger of the Sacred Heart" magazine a review of the book, "An American Dialogue" by Robert McAfee Brown and Father Gustave Wiegel. Brindel calls the book in which each of the authors looks at Catholicism and Protestantism respectively," one of the first intelligent steps taken by two outstanding leaders of diverse theologies towards new understanding . . . It is at the parish level that the book must generate the yeast of understanding, good will and tolerence," Brindel concludes.

'MOTHER CHURCH'

San Rafael Baptist Parish Has Widespread Ministry

The First Baptist Church of San Rafael could well be described as the "mother church" of Marin County Southern Baptist churches.

Its ministry also extends into the hospitals and on the radio.

Pastor Wallace M. Hough Jr. recalls that "by action" of the San Rafael church in 1959 the San Anselmo Baptist Church was started. The church was formalized last February when 72 members of the San Rafael church became the congregation of the San Anselmo church.

Last June the Tiburon Boulevard Baptist Church was constituted with 54 charter members the same way. A Southern Baptist congregation, by the inititive of the San Rafael church, is now holding services at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall in Santa Venetia. That congregation plans to build its own church soon.

Also for the past eight years, a pastor of the First Baptist Church has broadcast a Sunday afternoon program over KTIM entitled "A Light Unto My Path." It is now conducted by pastor Hough Sundays, at 4:30 p.m. The devotional service includes local choirs as well as recorded sacred music.

Lay groups in the church holds worship services Sunday afternoons at the Villa Rest Home in San Rafael and on unscheduled days at the Marin County Hospital. Pastor Hough, a member of the Protestant Hospital Chaplains Assn., has for the past five years been "visiting chaplain" at Marin General Hospital and San Rafael General Hospital for the Southern Baptist denomination.

Youth For Christ Team Will Meet

A Youth For Christ evangelistic team will hold its first meeting in Marin at the Valley Baptist Church in Santa Venetia, announced Pastor Stanley Walsh.

The team will hold services tomorrow at 7 p.m., in the church, 3 North San Pedro Road. Included in the group of the Bay Area youth organization is the Youth For Christ Quartet, accordionist Ray Prigoditch and Roger Grass, song leader and speaker.

Merger Official; First Of Its Type In U. S.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They have finally made it.

After 21 years of negotiations, referendums, lawsuits, delays and other preliminaries, representatives of two branches of American Protestantism have met and sealed their historic merger.

"We've reached the climax of our years of planning," said the Rev. George C. Kirk, a Congregational Christian pastor of Muskegon, Mich.

The new church, whose constitution was declared in force here Tuesday, is the United Church of Christ.

It combines Congregational Christian churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church, the first church merger in the United States to unite denominations of different structure and origin.

Adventist Encampment

SANTA CRUZ (AP)—An estimated, 5,000 persons are attending nearby Soquel for the 83rd annual encampment of the Central California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. The 10-day conclave opened Thursday.

Marin Preachers Plan To Tee Off Monday

The July luncheon meeting of the Ministerial Fellowship of Marin County will be held at the Indian Valley Golf and Country Club in Novato Monday.

It will be preceded by the annual ministerial golf tournament on the Indian Valley course with tee-off time at 8:30 a.m., announced Rev. Fred C. Braunschweiger.

EMPLOYERS FAIL ON RELIGION AIDS

Catholic Magazine Article Says Religious Provisions Needed For 'Migrant' Families

In the July issue of "St. Anthony Messenger," a national Catholic periodical, employers who make no provision for the spiritual and religious life of employees are criticized by Novato writer Paul Brindel.

The article, entitled "Displaced Catholics in the U. S.," deals with what it feels are the lack of provisions for cultural and religious conditions when big companies move groups of employees "en masse" from one community to another. Brindel points out that many company's provide just about everything else for the "migrants."

"Is there any reason why . . . any major employer," writes Brindel, "should not provide public school districts and Protestant and Catholic parochial schools with buildings on a lease or installment purchase basis?"

"Such a program would be self-liquidating," concludes Brindel. "The buildings in most states would be free from local taxes and any monetary loss could be taken as a federal and/or state income tax deduction."

Brindel this month also published in the "Messenger of the Sacred Heart" magazine a review of the book, "An American Dialogue" by Robert McAfee Brown and Father Gustave Wiegel. Brindel calls the book in which each of the authors looks at Catholicism and Protestantism respectively," one of the first intelligent steps taken by two outstanding leaders of diverse theologies towards new understanding . . . It is at the parish level that the book must generate the yeast of understanding, good will and tolerence," Brindel concludes.

'MOTHER CHURCH'

San Rafael Baptist Parish Has Widespread Ministry

The First Baptist Church of San Rafael could well be described as the "mother church" of Marin County Southern Baptist churches.

Its ministry also extends into the hospitals and on the radio.

Pastor Wallace M. Hough Jr. recalls that "by action" of the San Rafael church in 1959 the San Anselmo Baptist Church was started. The church was formalized last February when 72 members of the San Rafael church became the congregation of the San Anselmo church.

Last June the Tiburon Boulevard Baptist Church was constituted with 54 charter members the same way. A Southern Baptist congregation, by the inititive of the San Rafael church, is now holding services at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall in Santa Venetia. That congregation plans to build its own church soon.

Also for the past eight years, a pastor of the First Baptist Church has broadcast a Sunday afternoon program over KTIM entitled "A Light Unto My Path." It is now conducted by pastor Hough Sundays, at 4:30 p.m. The devotional service includes local choirs as well as recorded sacred music.

Lay groups in the church holds worship services Sunday afternoons at the Villa Rest Home in San Rafael and on unscheduled days at the Marin County Hospital. Pastor Hough, a member of the Protestant Hospital Chaplains Assn., has for the past five years been "visiting chaplain" at Marin General Hospital and San Rafael General Hospital for the Southern Baptist denomination.

Youth For Christ Team Will Meet

A Youth For Christ evangelistic team will hold its first meeting in Marin at the Valley Baptist Church in Santa Venetia, announced Pastor Stanley Walsh.

The team will hold services tomorrow at 7 p.m., in the church, 3 North San Pedro Road. Included in the group of the Bay Area youth organization is the Youth For Christ Quartet, accordionist Ray Prigoditch and Roger Grass, song leader and speaker.

Merger Official; First Of Its Type In U. S.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They have finally made it.

After 21 years of negotiations, referendums, lawsuits, delays and other preliminaries, representatives of two branches of American Protestantism have met and sealed their historic merger.

"We've reached the climax of our years of planning," said the Rev. George C. Kirk, a Congregational Christian pastor of Muskegon, Mich.

The new church, whose constitution was declared in force here Tuesday, is the United Church of Christ.

It combines Congregational Christian churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church, the first church merger in the United States to unite denominations of different structure and origin.

The Peace Corps: Catchy Campaign Promise That Has Become A Reality

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Peace Corps is in business.

Six months ago, it was just a campaign phrase that had fired the public imagination. Four months ago it came to life on paper, when President John F. Kennedy signed an executive order creating it, and named his brother-in-law, Sargent Shriver, as its director.

Today the Corps is a flesh-and-blood reality. It has a headquarters staff of 150 people bustling around on three floors of a commercial office building two blocks from the White House. And—more important—it has about 200 real live young Americans already in training, on college campuses in Texas, California and New Jersey, for voluntary service in underdeveloped countries.

Several hundred additional Corps members will be selected and sent to training centers during July and August. By September, the first contingent will go abroad.

Five Peace Corps projects have been approved---In Ghana, the Philippines, Columbia, Chili and the Caribbean island of St. Lucia.

Others are in the works for India, Pakistan, Thailand, Nigeria and several Latin American countries. Officials estimate that 1,000 Corps members will be on the job overseas or enroute to foreign posts by the end of the year.

In the transition from idea to actuality, the Peace Corps has undergone changes which have made it a less romantic than original dream but, in the opinion of congressmen and diplomats, considerably more practical.

There is no longer any talks of a vast army of enthusiastic youths swarming abroad to live in mud huts and perform menial manual labor without pay.

It is now clear that the Peace Corps will be a relatively small organization for the foreseeable future. Officials expect no more than 3,000 members by the end of 1962.

It is also clear that warm hearts and willing hands, although certainly needed, will not be enough to qualify for Peace Corps service. The underdeveloped countries have plenty of manpower for manual labor. What they need—and what the Peace Corps will try to supply—is skilled people who know how to teach school, build barns, survey roads, raise chickens, or handle other tasks requiring experience, training or technical proficiency.

Living conditions for the Peace Corps, while rugged by American standards, will be well above the mud hut level. The rule of thumb is that Corps members will receive allowances sufficient to enable them to maintain approximately the same standard of living as their counterparts in the countries in which they are serving. Thus the 300 Americans who are going to the Philippines to teach English will live like Filipino teachers, and not like primitive Bantok tribesmen of the mountain provinces.

In addition to living allowances, Corps members will receive a stipend of $75 a month, which will be held in escrow for payment when they are mustered out after two or three years service.

Even with these modifications, Shriver says, "Life in the Peace Corps will not be easy." At best, members will have to forego many of the creature comforts which Americans take for granted. At worst, they will suffer real hardships. Their "separation bonus" of $75 a month will be only a fraction of what they could earn in comparable jobs in the United States.

Thus, by deliberate policy, the conditions of service in the Corps have been kept such that they will appeal only to hardy souls who are willing to make sacrifices for the adventure of helping less privileged people build themselves a brighter future.

More than 11,000 Americans have applied for Corps membership on these terms, and new applications are still pouring in at a rate of more than 100 a day. This fact suggests to Shriver that it is time to stop calling America's younger generation "security-minded" and "uncommitted."

The tremendous response has made it possible for the corps to be highly selective. It is screening applicants carefully in an effort to insure that Corps members will be physically hardy and emotionally stable, and that they will possess the maturity, knowlege and competency to serve as attractive representatives of America.

This is a great relief to diplomatic officials and members of Congress who had feared that a horde of immature, politically-unsophisticated youngsters might be sent abroad to wreak further damage on America's image in the underdeveloped countries.

Corps members will receive from two to four months of intensive training before they take up their duties abroad. They will ~~study~~ languages ~~and~~ customs, brush up their knowledge of America's history and institutions, and take refresher courses in their own skills or technical specialties.

Protestants Join Catholics In Blasting Nevada 'Filth'

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Protestant clergymen have joined Catholics in lambasting bare bosom productions featured at Las Vegas and Reno night spots, but producers have no plans to cover the showgirls.

Catholic Bishop Robert Dwyer raised the issue first in a statement to be read in Catholic churches tomorrow. He called the shows "filth" and warned Catholics it was a "grave sin" to watch them.

The Washoe County Ministerial Assn. jumped into the controversy yesterday.

"They (the shows) do not add to the morality of the community and they help breed juvenile delinquency," the Rev. David Meadows, association president, said.

Bishop Dwyer called for more plumage on the girls "before national sentiment forces this upon us."

The bare-breasted chorus girls have capered on Las Vegas stages for about three years, but did not appear in Reno until this season.

They have been playing to jammed theaters.

"If a nude is used discreetly and artistically there is nothing vulgar or obscene about it," said Barry Ashton, producer of the "Holiday in Rio" at the Las Vegas New Frontier and "Playmates in Paris" at Reno's Golden Hotel.

The state gaming control board in Carson City steered clear of the controversy.

The board may consider the public interest and morals when it makes recommendations on applications for gaming licenses. Its decisions usually are accepted by the state gaming commission, which approves applications.

Dean Warns Grads To Shun Certain Books

LOS ANGELES—Newly graduated college students who wish to maintain their security, self-assurance and orthodoxy have been warned by a university dean to stay away from certain dangerous books.

"Not the ones the censors try to suppress," said Dean Lawrence Clark Powell of the UCLA School of Library Service, "but those bombs in sheep's binding about such seemingly innocent subjects as whales, grass, a pond in the woods and a raft on the river."

Anyone who doesn't enjoy being "blown sky-high, or lulled to dreams, or dazzled by beauty or turned into a heretic" should shun Melville's "Moby Dick," Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," Thoreau's "Walden," and Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," he warned in a recent Commencement address at the University of Arizona.

"Such books slide down the throat, then explode in the stomach, whereas such obviously revolutionary books as 'Das Kapital' and 'Mein Kampf' stick in the throat, and if they are swallowed, produce indigestion from their lumpiness.

"Their time has passed. They are dead."

For the young graduate who wishes to find out if he himself is dead, Dean Powell suggests this simple do-it-yourself test:

"Pick up and read a paperback edition of 'Leaves of Grass.' If there is any life in you, the current from this book will make you spin and hum like a dynamo.

"And if you don't react to it, you will live out your deadly life exactly as surveys show most college graduates to be living—subscribing to the current magazines, belonging to a book club, absorbing cultural rations along with vitamin pills, and with predigested reading matter in every bathroom."

New B'nai B'rith Officers Named

San Anselmo attorney Robert H. Horn will be installed as president of Marin Lodge 1327, B'nai B'rith, at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in the Marin Jewish Community Center, San Rafael.

Horn succeeds Harry Yaffee who will become lodge Chaplain. Other officers to be installed are: Martin E. Marks, first vice president; Ted Rosenak, second vice president; Harold Harris, recording secretary; Albert Schlachtman, financial secretary; Jack Greenfield, treasurer; Warren A. Robinson, warden; Eugene Seigmann, guardian; and Charles Harper, Paul Mendelsohn and Jerome S. Schuman, trustees.

Norman Simon, grand secretary of District Grand Lodge No. 4, will be installing officer and keynote speaker.

Horn presently is vice president of the Central California B'nai B'rith Council and district central area chairman for citizenship and civic affairs.

He was charter president of Skyline Lodge in San Francisco. He is a past member of the district grand lodge executive board and a former chairman of the district central area adult Jewish education committee.

Parks Commission

Next meeting of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission will be held at 2 p.m. July 14, according to Gibbs H. Lawson of Dillon Beach, chairman. The meeting normally held the first Wednesday of the month was canceled because it would have occurred the day after July 4.

Death Row Prisoner's Appeal Lost

OROVILLE (UPI)— Veron (Jack) Atchley is scheduled to die in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber Aug. 23 for the murder of his wife.

The execution date was set by the Butte County Superior Court following rejection of Atchley's appeal by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Atchley was under the death sentence when Gov. Edmund G. Brown granted kidnap-rapist Caryl Chessman and some 20 other death row inmates a reprieve. Chessman later was executed.

Atchley was convicted of shooting his estranged wife, Marcella, in front of her Gridley home Aug. 3, 1958.

Students Can Earn Part Of YMCA Camp Expenses

High school students will have the opportunity to earn part of their expenses at YMCA coeducational summer camp July 23-Aug. 6 in the Santa Cruz Mountains.

Boys may earn two-thirds of their camp expenses by working four hours daily on forestry projects, Lou Albrecht, Marin County Young Men's Christian Assn. executive, reported. The work consists of trail blazing, land clearing and tree cultivation.

Girls can earn one-third of their camp costs by working two hours daily on camp improvement projects and by leading activities for younger children.

Afternoons and evenings will be free for recreation, Albrecht said. The recreation schedule calls for swimming, hiking, fishing and evening parties in the lodge.

Applicants must be high school sophomores, juniors or seniors, Albrecht pointed out. The YMCA camp is 65 miles south of San Rafael near La Honda.

Preference will be given to members of the Hi-Y and Tri-Y clubs and to boys interested in forestry, Albrecht said.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Gather Information Before You Guess

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you have three finesses to take, which should you try first? It isn't a matter of guesswork; you can work it out by logic.

Begin by drawing two rounds of trumps. Then choose the right side suit to try first. See if you can work out in which order you would tackle the side suits.

Try the club finesse first. If it wins, you are that much ahead of the game. If it loses, you will need the ace of spades in the East hand to make the contract. And if East has the ace of spades and the king of clubs, you had better play West for the ace of diamonds in view of East's failure to bid in third position.

FINESSE WINS

As it happens, the club finesse works. Which suit should you try next — diamonds or spades?

Lead the spades first. You need no skill to tackle this suit; you either win or lose when you put up the king of spades. If you win, the contract is assured.

As it happens, the king of spades loses to the ace. Now you have some information to help you choose the correct play in diamonds. Since West is known to have the ace of spades and the king of clubs, you assume that he does not hold the ace of diamonds. Therefore you lead a diamond from your hand and finesse dummy's jack.

This drives out the ace, and you make the contract. If you had tackled diamonds earlier you would have had no reason for playing the jack rather than the king, and you might well have guessed the wrong play.

DAILY QUESTION

What do you say?

Answer: Bid one heart. This is worth an opening bid of one in first or second position, but nobody can throw stones at you for a bid of four hearts in third or fourth position.

Valedictory Team For This School

HARTVILLE, Ohio (AP) — If your school needs a valedictorian, Lake High School has them to spare.

Three members of the 1961 graduating class of 64 reigned as an all-star scholarship team, because each posted an all-A record for four years of high school.

Sharing the valedictorian honors were Janet Aiken, a pretty blonde who like to water ski; Mark Wagler, who enjoys chess, and Myrna Moon, a lively piano-playing cheerleader.

Gather Information Before You Guess

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When you have three finesses to take, which should you try first? It isn't a matter of guesswork; you can work it out by logic.

Begin by drawing two rounds of trumps. Then choose the right side suit to try first. See if you can work out in which order you would tackle the side suits.

Try the club finesse first. If it wins, you are that much ahead of the game. If it loses, you will need the ace of spades in the East hand to make the contract. And if East has the ace of spades and the king of clubs, you had better play West for the ace of diamonds in view of East's failure to bid in third position.

FINESSE WINS

As it happens, the club finesse works. Which suit should you try next — diamonds or spades?

Lead the spades first. You need no skill to tackle this suit; you either win or lose when you put up the king of spades. If you win, the contract is assured.

As it happens, the king of spades loses to the ace. Now you have some information to help you choose the correct play in diamonds. Since West is known to have the ace of spades and the king of clubs, you assume that he does not hold the ace of diamonds. Therefore you lead a diamond from your hand and finesse dummy's jack.

This drives out the ace, and you make the contract. If you had tackled diamonds earlier you would have had no reason for playing the jack rather than the king, and you might well have guessed the wrong play.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid one heart. This is worth an opening bid of one in first or second position, but nobody can throw stones at you for a bid of four hearts in third or fourth position.

Valedictory Team For This School

HARTVILLE, Ohio (AP) — If your school needs a valedictorian, Lake High School has them to spare.

Three members of the 1961 graduating class of 64 reigned as an all-star scholarship team, because each posted an all-A record for four years of high school.

Sharing the valedictorian honors were Janet Aiken, a pretty blonde who like to water ski; Mark Wagler, who enjoys chess, and Myrna Moon, a lively piano-playing cheerleader.

There's Something You Can Do If Taxes Aren't Fair

Taxpayers of Marin County for the next two weeks have their annual opportunity to do something about their own, individual tax problems if they think they are not being treated fairly.

Starting Monday, and continuing at least through the following week, the County Board of Supervisors will sit as a County Board of Equalization for the purpose of hearing complaints by Marin property owners.

Your tax bill results from two things, your tax rates and the assessed value of your properties. We've mentioned in this space before something you can do about the tax rate—attend budget hearings of the various governmental agencies and show them how they can cut costs.

The other factor has to do with your own property and its assessed valuation. If you don't know what assessed value is, go see the assessor, he can tell you.

It is important that your assessed valuation be fair. Your property's value is used by every local taxing agency in which you live. It is multiplied by the specific district's tax rate to get your particular tax bill. If the asessed value is too high—or too low—you will not be paying a fair tax bill.

Consider that not just the county, but the city (if you live in one), the elementary school, the high school, junior college, hospital district, moquito abatement district, lighting district, sewage disposal district, fire district, recreational district, and perhaps others use that assessment figure to determine your taxes. Then you'll understand its importance.

Don't be tripped up by technicalities, either. You have a right to appear before the Board of Equalization to protest your assessment. But you must do it in a proper manner.

Your protest must be in writing, sworn to by you the taxpayer or your agent, on forms available in the county clerk's office. They must be filled in, signed and filed with the county clerk by 5 p.m. July 21.

Don't be afraid that if you challenge the assessor this time, he'll be harder on you next time. The equalization board is set up for this very purpose. He acknowledges that sometimes mistakes are made. That's why the board is available to correct them.

As a matter of fact, if you feel you don't have a fair assessment, why not go see the assessor first? Maybe you can work it out without going before the board. If you can't, the board is still available.

GIVE YOUTH A PURPOSE FOR LIVING

Is the average 14-year-old boy dreaming of fame and fortune, or becoming a fireman and engineer, Indian chief or President of the United States?

The answer is "no" according to a survey being conducted by Columbia University Teachers College among high school freshmen from all social classes. The study will follow the teenagers until the age of 35 to discover how they made out.

The researchers have sorrowfully concluded that, while young teenagers may be expert at building model airplanes, they do not yet have the maturity, knowledge or understanding "to make up their minds vocationally."

You can add meaning and direction to young lives by instilling each of them with the sense of vision that God wishes them to have.

Remind them that the world needs the contribution that can only be made if they set big and long-range goals for themselves, and then carry through.

New Type Portable Home Can Be Folded Up, Moved, Used As School

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A Fullerton manufacturing firm may have the answers to a lot of the state's problems for housing employes, school children, narcotic addicts and others.

The firm, Transa Homes, builds homes which may be hauled on the highways, erected in one day and are so soundly constructed the FHA has given its approval for financing them.

The homes actually have been in use for more than 10 years, but only to about one customer — the U. S. Department of Interior. The department has purchased several hundred of them. They've been used in Alaska and many out of the way places in this country — such as at dam construction sites — then hauled away for use at other sites.

THE FIRM CAN provide a school classroom, built to withstand the state's requirement for earthquake proofing, for about $13,000. The normal cost of classrooms by conventional construction methods is about $36,000.

The state's enthusiasm for the Transa homes was brought to light recently when the Capitol News Service carried a story that the division of architecture had called for bids for construction of two employe residences for a conservation camp in eastern Tehama county. The bid invitation said $61,700 was available for the two three-bedroom homes.

The job included installation of sewer and water systems but did not include purchase of land, which already was available.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Transa Homes indicated he might submit an alternate bid for the two houses, to be delivered and erected on the site for just over $13,000 each.

The U. S. Air Force also is understood to be interested in the novel homes. With considerable moving of its air bases, the air force has had to leave millions of dollars worth of houses behind. The portable type homes could be taken with the air force wherever it went.

The homes also may be considered for such operations as state water project construction, where housing for many state employes will have to be provided by the state.

JOHN E. CARR, state director of finance until July 1, had indicated an interest in the portable classrooms several months ago. Carr noted that the number of school children was increasing faster than the money with which to provide classrooms. Carr said the state should look to some sort of portable room to keep pace with growth in enrollment.

One unique feature of the Transa Home products is that they are hinged. The collapsed model is only 10 feet wide, permitting it to be hauled on highways. The two sides then are lifted for a roof, the ends fold out and the floor and wall fold out into place. Four men can install one completely in one day.

The homes are equipped with plumbing, air conditioning, all glass, vinyl floors, and need only a foundation or piers for installation.

ENABLING LEGISLATION to permit the use of such buildings for school classrooms was approved by the recent legislature and now is awaiting the signature of Gov. Edmund G. Brown. The Los Angeles school district already has purchased a number of the classrooms to be used in that area.

A spokesman for the firm said the houses underwent rigid testing by the FHA and exceeded the agency's minimums on most features. The construction is glued together, as well as nailed. Floors can stand 80 pounds per square foot pressure and roofs 100 pounds.

The firm may have the means to provide a breakthrough in economical and portable housing for state buildings.

Hollis Still In Race For State Schools Post

By CHAPIN A. DAY

CHIP DAY

If you have been wondering whether Marin County Schools Supt. Virgil Hollis is still hankering for the job as state superintendent of public instruction, the answer is: He still is.

Last weekend he got in a goodly amount of campaigning in Southern California, where he was attending the American Legion convention. Unfortunately he had to cut his trip short because of Monday night's county school board meeting or he'd have stayed on through the Fourth.

He says he finds things "look real good" for him in the Southland. A "log jam" of candidates for the job, now held by Roy E. Simpson, which appeared as the legislature closed last month, "seems to be clearing," Hollis believes. Some rumored candidates, like Assemblyman Carlos Bee and Louis H. Heilbron, chairman of the state college board of trustees, are eliminating themselves, he says.

At present he sees three other candidates besides himself. Simpson "probably will run," even though he had said this was to be his last term. "Every secretary I talk to thinks he will run," says Hollis.

Harlan Roberts, former director of the California Labor School who ran three years ago with the backing of Marinite Vincent Hallinan and amassed nearly 400,000 votes, will try it again.

Cecil D. Hardesty, San Diego county schools superintendent, is the third. He already is working to line up administrator, secondary and elementary teacher organizations to back him.

And if Simpson doesn't run, some of its staff will probably jump in too. Former Marin Supt. Wallace W. Hall, now a state associate superintendent, and Richard M. Clowes, former Oxnard schools head now in state service, are two of those mentioned.

Hollis thinks that within three months the picture will be clearer as to just who is running and who is backing whom. Election, you know, is just 11 months away, the primary that is.

HOLLIS ALSO reported American Legionnaires gave a standing, foot-stomping ovation to Gov. Edmund G. Brown —when it was announced Brown would not appear at the convention.

CONGRESSMAN Clem Miller of Corte Madera thinks he has the strangest relationship with the Marin County Board of Supervisors that any legislator ever had.

Marin, he says, is the only county where the supervisors have not invited him to sit down in a meeting to talk over mutual problems. And that's not just this year, Miller says. He's never had such an invitation in Marin in the three years he's served in the House. He has, though, in every other county of the district.

It's hurt Marin, too, Miller believes. The Richardson Bay flood control study was one of the things held up by a similar lack of local interest on the part of the county's governing board.

OFF THE ENVELOPE—San Francisco Mayor George Christopher publishes a daily calendar of his engagements for the edification of one and all. When he spoke before the Marin Young Republicans recently, the calendar item noted: "Marin Improvement Club."

Assemblyman William T. Bagley is scheduled to talk Wednesday night in Bermuda Palms before the Marin Republican Council. It should be interesting if he sticks to topics as announced: "Who really runs California? What can you do about it? Hear the 'Bagley Plan' for Republican Victory in '62."

Golden Gate Bridge users who noted and worried about an $800,000 item in the bridge board's 1961-62 budget for constructing traffic control arches across the span, need not worry it's going to happen quickly. Dan DelCarlo, chairman of the powerful building and operating committee, notified the directors he won't let the project out of his committee until the state does something about widening the San Francisco approach.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Mad Manhattan, Marvelous Marin

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

After a recent sojourn in Mad Manhattan one must say of Marvelous Marin County—With all thy faults we love thee still.

Take away the world's tallest buildings from New York and what have you?

Living conditions throughout the island cause one to hope for a law against having children on Manhattan. Thousands of city blocks are made up of superannuated four and five story walkups in which numberless tenants live without adequate plumbing, insufferably hot all summer and unbearably cold in winter.

Laundry of tattletale grey is festooned from window to fire escape, and the hundreds of thousands of children must play amid the traffic on the streets as the teen-agers "hang" on the corners.

By contrast, such avenues midtown as Park, Madison, and Fifth overwhelm one with their opulence. Block after block of towering glass buildings whose windows do not open because of the conditioned air inside. In the humid 90 degree weather men effect the coat and tie tradition, excepting the tourists, which are everywhere.

The shop windows cause one to wonder where all the money comes from to purchase these treasures. (A fruit store near Central Park weighed a single peach for me and asked 39c for it!) Hotel elegance amazes the visitor, and reservations should be made well in advance, particularly when, as ours did, arrival coincides with a religious convention of 25,000 delegates.

Yet the fabulous network of subways and surface lines provides close service for only 15 cents as against 22 cents in Philadelphia, and 25 cents in Chicago. And food is surprisingly modest in price.

Unless it's TV and big buildings you must have, go see Philadelphia. Most of America's really important historic landmarks are there, and the city is doing a most commendable job of demolishing eyesores and tenements and restoring colonial buildings. Its Roosevelt Boulevard is a model expressway with trees and landscaping on its miles of divided lanes. And there are over 4,000 acres to its Fairmount Park complete with river, hills, zoo, streams, Robin Hood Dell amphitheatre, lakes, and great old trees. An 80 page issue of the great Philadelphia Bulletin daily costs only 5 cents (20 cents Sunday). Museums and art galleries and the fabulous Franklin Institute . . .

Everyone should take a trip to New York if for no other reason than to gain an appreciation for the advantages of living in Marin.

San Rafael School Board Can Take Long Look For Lucas' Successor

The resignation of Frank Lucas as superintendent of San Rafael schools, forced by his fragile health, faces the San Rafael Board of Education with the difficult task of naming a successor.

Of the five present board members, only Rex Silvernale has been on the board since before Lucas became superintendent in 1954. Silvernale was elected in April, 1953, only a few months before Lucas was hired as assistant to Supt. Oliver Hartzell. When Hartzell died that year, Lucas was named acting superintendent, and the following year was appointed superintendent.

THERE HAS been some hint that the board may follow the precedent established then by upping one of the present staff to the superintendency.

Mentioned as possibilities are Ray Simpson, assistant superintendent for business, who has been acting superintendant during Lucas illness, and Mildred Barnard, supervisor of elementary curriculum.

Both have doctor's degrees in education. Both have had elementary school teaching experience. Simpson has also taught in high school, and Mrs. Barnard has worked at the college level. Both were brought into the San Rafael school system by Lucas in 1957.

SIMPSON BEGAN his career in education as an elementary school teacher in Riverdale, Fresno County, after graduation from Fresno State College. He served in the Air Force in World War II, went on to take master's and doctor's degrees from Stanford University.

He was teacher, then principal and superintendent of a high school in Angels Camp and principal of Quincy High School in Plumas County. He also spent a year in Stanford's schoolhouse planning laboratory.

Mrs. Barnard was born and reared in Baker, Ore., and received her bachelor's degree from Eastern Oregon Normal School. She taught in elementary schools in Baker and Pendleton, Ore., and was principal at Pendleton. She obtained master's degree and Ph.D. from Stanford and was superintendent of student teachers at Humboldt State College, then a counselor at City College of San Francisco before coming to San Rafael.

On the record, both appear qualified for the superintendency, although Mrs. Barnard's lack of high school experience might count against her.

HOWEVER, THERE are some parents, deeply interested in the schools, who think it would be advisable to go outside the present staff for a successor to Lucas.

They feel that the administrative staff easily channels the board of education (often composed of members who have not been too close to the schools before election) into its own pattern of thinking as to regards school setup, curriculum, zones of emphasis, etc.

Bringing in a top-flight educator from outside would assure a new look at the San Rafael system, these parents believe. Appointing from the present staff would tend to make rigid the patterns that have grown up. Though these patterns may be good, their rigidity must in the long run prove detrimental to the schools these parents believe.

The board of education can afford to take a long look before committing itself. It can also afford to take a wide look.

Public Agencies Must Cooperate

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Your editorial comment of 6/23/61 that " . . . something must eventually be done to integrate the operations of any physical, but not political, entity like the San Francisco Bay Area" I find interesting.

Eventually all public agencies are going to have to face the realities and problems of an ever-growing number of unnecessarily competing agencies.

I would add that unless public agencies of all kinds voluntarily seek to coordinate their activities, I am very much afraid that sooner or later the State may be forced into the position of having to legislate for coordination. Coordination can be achieved, I think, without the loss of agency autonomy.

The Independent-Journal's recognition of this problem is an encouraging sign of public leadership in substantive political matters.

CHIP DAY

If you have been wondering whether Marin County Schools Supt. Virgil Hollis is still hankering for the job as state superintendent of public instruction, the answer is: He still is.

Last weekend he got in a goodly amount of campaigning in Southern California, where he was attending the American Legion convention. Unfortunately he had to cut his trip short because of Monday night's county school board meeting or he'd have stayed on through the Fourth.

He says he finds things "look real good" for him in the Southland. A "log jam" of candidates for the job, now held by Roy E. Simpson, which appeared as the legislature closed last month, "seems to be clearing," Hollis believes. Some rumored candidates, like Assemblyman Carlos Bee and Louis H. Heilbron, chairman of the state college board of trustees, are eliminating themselves, he says.

At present he sees three other candidates besides himself. Simpson "probably will run," even though he had said this was to be his last term. "Every secretary I talk to thinks he will run," says Hollis.

Harlan Roberts, former director of the California Labor School who ran three years ago with the backing of Marinite Vincent Hallinan and amassed nearly 400,000 votes, will try it again.

Cecil D. Hardesty, San Diego county schools superintendent, is the third. He already is working to line up administrator, secondary and elementary teacher organizations to back him.

And if Simpson doesn't run, some of its staff will probably jump in too. Former Marin Supt. Wallace W. Hall, now a state associate superintendent, and Richard M. Clowes, former Oxnard schools head now in state service, are two of those mentioned.

Hollis thinks that within three months the picture will be clearer as to just who is running and who is backing whom. Election, you know, is just 11 months away, the primary that is.

HOLLIS ALSO reported American Legionnaires gave a standing, foot-stomping ovation to Gov. Edmund G. Brown —when it was announced Brown would not appear at the convention.

CONGRESSMAN Clem Miller of Corte Madera thinks he has the strangest relationship with the Marin County Board of Supervisors that any legislator ever had.

Marin, he says, is the only county where the supervisors have not invited him to sit down in a meeting to talk over mutual problems. And that's not just this year, Miller says. He's never had such an invitation in Marin in the three years he's served in the House. He has, though, in every other county of the district.

It's hurt Marin, too, Miller believes. The Richardson Bay flood control study was one of the things held up by a similar lack of local interest on the part of the county's governing board.

OFF THE ENVELOPE—San Francisco Mayor George Christopher publishes a daily calendar of his engagements for the edification of one and all. When he spoke before the Marin Young Republicans recently, the calendar item noted: "Marin Improvement Club."

Assemblyman William T. Bagley is scheduled to talk Wednesday night in Bermuda Palms before the Marin Republican Council. It should be interesting if he sticks to topics as announced: "Who really runs California? What can you do about it? Hear the 'Bagley Plan' for Republican Victory in '62."

Golden Gate Bridge users who noted and worried about an $800,000 item in the bridge board's 1961-62 budget for constructing traffic control arches across the span, need not worry it's going to happen quickly. Dan DelCarlo, chairman of the powerful building and operating committee, notified the directors he won't let the project out of his committee until the state does something about widening the San Francisco approach.

A theatrical agent would have no part of an applicant who claimed he could do any kind of bird imitation.

"At least listen to my act," begged the applicant.

"Haven't got time," snapped the agent. "Bird imitators died with vaudeville."

"Okay, if that's the way you feel about it," concluded the offended artist — and flew out of the window.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Mad Manhattan, Marvelous Marin

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

After a recent sojourn in Mad Manhattan one must say of Marvelous Marin County—With all thy faults we love thee still.

Take away the world's tallest buildings from New York and what have you?

Living conditions throughout the island cause one to hope for a law against having children on Manhattan. Thousands of city blocks are made up of superannuated four and five story walkups in which numberless tenants live without adequate plumbing, insufferably hot all summer and unbearably cold in winter.

Laundry of tattletale grey is festooned from window to fire escape, and the hundreds of thousands of children must play amid the traffic on the streets as the teen-agers "hang" on the corners.

By contrast, such avenues midtown as Park, Madison, and Fifth overwhelm one with their opulence. Block after block of towering glass buildings whose windows do not open because of the conditioned air inside. In the humid 90 degree weather men effect the coat and tie tradition, excepting the tourists, which are everywhere.

The shop windows cause one to wonder where all the money comes from to purchase these treasures. (A fruit store near Central Park weighed a single peach for me and asked 39c for it!) Hotel elegance amazes the visitor, and reservations should be made well in advance, particularly when, as ours did, arrival coincides with a religious convention of 25,000 delegates.

Yet the fabulous network of subways and surface lines provides close service for only 15 cents as against 22 cents in Philadelphia, and 25 cents in Chicago. And food is surprisingly modest in price.

Unless it's TV and big buildings you must have, go see Philadelphia. Most of America's really important historic landmarks are there, and the city is doing a most commendable job of demolishing eyesores and tenements and restoring colonial buildings. Its Roosevelt Boulevard is a model expressway with trees and landscaping on its miles of divided lanes. And there are over 4,000 acres to its Fairmount Park complete with river, hills, zoo, streams, Robin Hood Dell amphitheatre, lakes, and great old trees. An 80 page issue of the great Philadelphia Bulletin daily costs only 5 cents (20 cents Sunday). Museums and art galleries and the fabulous Franklin Institute . . .

Everyone should take a trip to New York if for no other reason than to gain an appreciation for the advantages of living in Marin.

San Rafael School Board Can Take Long Look For Lucas' Successor

The resignation of Frank Lucas as superintendent of San Rafael schools, forced by his fragile health, faces the San Rafael Board of Education with the difficult task of naming a successor.

Of the five present board members, only Rex Silvernale has been on the board since before Lucas became superintendent in 1954. Silvernale was elected in April, 1953, only a few months before Lucas was hired as assistant to Supt. Oliver Hartzell. When Hartzell died that year, Lucas was named acting superintendent, and the following year was appointed superintendent.

THERE HAS been some hint that the board may follow the precedent established then by upping one of the present staff to the superintendency.

Mentioned as possibilities are Ray Simpson, assistant superintendent for business, who has been acting superintendant during Lucas illness, and Mildred Barnard, supervisor of elementary curriculum.

Both have doctor's degrees in education. Both have had elementary school teaching experience. Simpson has also taught in high school, and Mrs. Barnard has worked at the college level. Both were brought into the San Rafael school system by Lucas in 1957.

SIMPSON BEGAN his career in education as an elementary school teacher in Riverdale, Fresno County, after graduation from Fresno State College. He served in the Air Force in World War II, went on to take master's and doctor's degrees from Stanford University.

He was teacher, then principal and superintendent of a high school in Angels Camp and principal of Quincy High School in Plumas County. He also spent a year in Stanford's schoolhouse planning laboratory.

Mrs. Barnard was born and reared in Baker, Ore., and received her bachelor's degree from Eastern Oregon Normal School. She taught in elementary schools in Baker and Pendleton, Ore., and was principal at Pendleton. She obtained master's degree and Ph.D. from Stanford and was superintendent of student teachers at Humboldt State College, then a counselor at City College of San Francisco before coming to San Rafael.

On the record, both appear qualified for the superintendency, although Mrs. Barnard's lack of high school experience might count against her.

HOWEVER, THERE are some parents, deeply interested in the schools, who think it would be advisable to go outside the present staff for a successor to Lucas.

They feel that the administrative staff easily channels the board of education (often composed of members who have not been too close to the schools before election) into its own pattern of thinking as to regards school setup, curriculum, zones of emphasis, etc.

Bringing in a top-flight educator from outside would assure a new look at the San Rafael system, these parents believe. Appointing from the present staff would tend to make rigid the patterns that have grown up. Though these patterns may be good, their rigidity must in the long run prove detrimental to the schools these parents believe.

The board of education can afford to take a long look before committing itself. It can also afford to take a wide look.

Public Agencies Must Cooperate

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Your editorial comment of 6/23/61 that " . . . something must eventually be done to integrate the operations of any physical, but not political, entity like the San Francisco Bay Area" I find interesting.

Eventually all public agencies are going to have to face the realities and problems of an ever-growing number of unnecessarily competing agencies.

I would add that unless public agencies of all kinds voluntarily seek to coordinate their activities, I am very much afraid that sooner or later the State may be forced into the position of having to legislate for coordination. Coordination can be achieved, I think, without the loss of agency autonomy.

The Independent-Journal's recognition of this problem is an encouraging sign of public leadership in substantive political matters.

Insects Are His 'Unmapped Continent'

Entomologist Edward Ross Explores Their Tiny World

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Mill Valley's Dr. Edward S. Ross, curator of entomology at the California Academy of Sciences, is both a scholar and a man of action.

A great believer in private enterprise and the principle that almost anyone can go just as far as he is determined to go, Dr. Ross has pursued this ideal since childhood. This is probably what has made him—according to the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and Time Magazine—"one of San Francisco's 100 newsmakers of tomorrow."

This intense drive to go just where he has always known he wanted to go is largely responsible for his eminence in his chosen field and the many thousands of miles of the earth's surface he has traversed.

Next week, he, his wife, Wilda, their 11-year-old son, Clark, and 18-year-old David Cavagnaro are to leave Mill Valley on a year-long expedition to tropical Asia. The expedition is sponsored by the National Geographic Society, the National Science Foundation and the California Academy of Sciences.

DR. ROSS WAS given research grants by the National Geographic Society and the National Science Foundation to conduct a "survey of the Embioptera of tropical Asia." Embioptera comprise a little known order of web-spinning insects something like termites.

Taking their custom-built four-wheel drive truck fully equipped for living out-of-doors, the party will set sail July 16 from Seattle on an American Mail Line freighter. They will go to Asia by way of the Orient, and after landing either at Colombo, Ceylon, or Madras, India, will follow an itinerary that will include India, East and West Pakistan, Ceylon and Nepal.

After six months there they will sail back to Singapore, unload and spend several months doing field work in Malaya, Thailand and Cambodia.

Why is Dr. Ross interested in Embioptera?

"Because entomology is one of the largest scientific fields. Three-quarters of the kinds of living things are insects, you know—so it's necessary to specialize," he said. "Because of their obscure habits, Embioptera are very seldom collected, even by entomologists, so that uncovering knowledge about them is to me what an unmapped continent would be to an explorer.

"Like the man who climbed the mountain 'because it is there,' I have to study Embioptera because they are there."

In the Lilliputian world of insects Ross' tools are usually tweezers instead of a net, for some of his subjects are no bigger than a grain of sand, acute hearing, sharp eyes, the patience of Job in searching for the insects and watching their behavior and a calm temperament to face sudden encounters in potentially dangerous situations.

DURING HIS last 26,000 mile expedition to Africa in 1958-59 more than a quarter of a million insects were collected, possibly the largest single lot of insect research material ever brought to America out of the huge continent.

This is the background of the man who has always known what he wanted to do:

Born Sept. 1, 1915, in Spokane, Wash., Edward was one of the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin C. Ross. His father's family were pioneers in the development of Spokane, having homesteaded on what turned out to be downtown Spokane.

The family moved to the Bay Area when Edward was 4 years old and lived in western San Francisco residential sections until he was about 14, when they moved to Oakland.

"As far back as I can remember," he said, "I was interested in animals and plants and nature in general. Mt. Davidson was my Mt. Everest, and the sand dunes of the Sunset district were my Sahara to be explored at every opportunity.

"At home my brothers and I had our own space for pursuing our interests. I remember we had two radio stations, causing house lights to flash on and off all the time.

"Instinctively I seemed to take an interest in insects, and at a very early age I set up my own laboratory.

"Though I wasn't antisocial, I didn't enjoy 'togetherness' particularly, and incidentally I think there's far too much organized society for children today.

"I attended Polytechnic High School in San Francisco and transferred to Oakland Technical High School when we moved to the East Bay.

"MY FATHER died when I was in high school so that when the time came for college, money was one of the most important considerations. Linfield College in McMinnville, Ore., had been endowed with money from the Ross family—so I attended school there.

"I knew exactly what I was going to do and that I would eventually enroll at the University of California. Hence at Linfield I duplicated Cal's solid courses for the freshman and sophomore years."

At Cal he majored in entomology and received his Bachelor of Science degree in 1937, graduating in the midst of the great depression.

"Without a job or money, right here I might have become another forgotten fruit picker, for there was money in picking apricots then. But I wanted to stay on the campus and took a job hoeing weeds there."

He continued to stay on the campus, eventually becoming graduate assistant to Professor Edward O. Essig in entomology, and by the time he had finished two years toward his doctorate, he was offered a part-time position at the California Academy of Sciences.

"I had always wanted to work in a museum," Ross explained, "and had this kind of job in mind."

He continued graduate work at Cal during this period and by May, 1941, at the age of 25, had received his Ph. D. degree.

"BY THE WAY, museums aren't such dead places as people suppose," he laughed. "That is where I met my wife, Wilda Simon, a Cal graduate with major in botany. She was a junior museum nature counselor at the San Francisco Junior Museum, and we became acquainted when she brought her classes to the academy on special occasions."

Right here it should be said that Mrs. Ross is of great help on her husband's field trips. Slender and feminine in appearance, she nevertheless must have a comparable fortitude to his in order to live out-of-doors for months at a time in difficult climates, not to mention "housekeeping" under near primitive conditions. And on the present expedition she will have to tutor their son.

In the summer of 1938 the young scientist made his first major field trip in an old Model A to Baja California, terminating at Cape San Lucas, one of the most remote areas of North America.

He duplicated this exploit in 1941 in an old laundry truck, for which he paid $250 and which was to last him for years.

The young couple was married in March, 1942, despite the beginning of World War II for the United States at Pearl Harbor and the fact that Ross knew he would be in the army in April.

Again he had planned exactly what he was going to do. The Monday after Pearl Harbor Sunday, instead of going to work, he went to the San Francisco Presidio to inquire about the need for medical entomologists.

As a result, he was one of the first commissioned—as a first lieutenant, later promoted to major—during the war. Stationed with the 8th Service Command at Fort Sam Houston, he began the study of how to identify the tropical insects which caused almost all the major diseases in the Pacific arena of combat.

WITHOUT BEING under orders he planned much of his own work and with Dr. H. Radcliffe Roberts developed a mosquito identification guide book, samples pages of which they had published at their own expense.

These samples sent to the U.S. Army Surgeon General's office in Washington, D.C., resulted in his working out of that office until he was assigned to command a malaria survey unit—by his own request in New Guinea and the Philippines.

"This was a wonderful place for nature study," Ross explained. "Though it was hazardous because we were always with the first landings in order to set up malaria control operations immediately, my chief memories are of the wonders of natural history there rather than the horrors of fighting."

Ross took part in three malaria survey operations, the first beyond Hollandia, the second at Leyte and the third at Mindora, where he spent the remainder of the war.

Meanwhile in the United States his daughter, Martha, now 16 years old, had been born—but he didn't see her until she was 18 months old.

After returning home in 1946 and to the California Academy of Sciences, where he was made curator of the department of entomology Ross decided he wanted to live in Marin and began scanning the county for a home site.

An extreme advocate of planning as an individual, Dr. Ross is not too happy with planning commissions who set up such restrictive requirements for home development and access that they make it difficult to plan the unique homes that make Marin what it is.

"THE MOST desirable development for Marin's natural or hill areas would be about five-acre parcels bought by individuals who would plan the lot sites and driveway accesses—which would not be maintained by the city or county except for a few arterial highways. This would reduce the number of community maintained arterial roads that scar the hills.

"Such a land owner would then sell only to the people whom he wanted as neighbors, and in this way really desirable communities would be developed."

Dr. Ross is following just such a plan himself. The home he designed to fit the land at 57 Lee Street was built on weekends with his own hands, except for some professional carpentry help.

He is a great admirer of the Japanese style in homes and gardens, and the Ross home has that feeling. Started in 1947, it isn't finished yet, and he doesn't know when it will be.

Two years after they moved into this home the Rosses' son, Clark, was born Dec. 26, 1949.

Before and while he was building the house he made a trip to Mexico in 1946, another in 1948 and for eight months in 1950-51 toured Chile, Argentina, Bolivia and a portion of Peru in the same old laundry truck that took him on his first insect odyssey.

By 1953 he had developed his techniques of "bringing the camera to the insect" rather than the insect to the camera. This led to the publishing of a book entitled "Insects Close Up," which proved one of the reasons he was selected in 1954-55 for the Guggenheim fellowship in nature photography that permitted him and his wife to take a second field trip to South America—this time to the Amazon forests of Eastern Peru.

Leaving the children with Mrs. Ross's parents, they started this South American venture in Lima and drove across the Andes in an over-aged newspaper delivery truck too old for the hills of San Francisco but good enough for the heights of Peru, Ecuador and Colombia.

In 1957-58 with Robin E. Leech of Mill Valley, a 21-year-old University of British Columbia student as assistant, the Rosses went on an expedition to equatorial and southern Africa, sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the California Academy of Sciences.

CHOOSING OF young Leech, widely known for his activities at Tamalpais High School, was in accordance with Dr. Ross's interest in helping brilliant young people, who, like himself, know where they are going.

David Quinn Cavagnaro, who is going on the current expedition to Asia, had an outstanding record of achievement at Tamalpais High School and has completed his freshman year at the University of California. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Cavagnaro of Mill Valley.

In a new truck—at long last—the party of three sailed for Africa, landing at the mouth of the Congo River. They drove across equatorial Africa and saw the Congo intimately in their 33,000-mile trek that took them down to the south-

a portion of Peru in the same old laundry truck that took him on his first insect odyssey.

By 1953 he had developed his techniques of "bringing the camera to the insect" rather than the insect to the camera. This led to the publishing of a book entitled "Insects Close Up," which proved one of the reasons he was selected in 1954-55 for the Guggenheim fellowship in nature photography that permitted him and his wife to take a second field trip to South America—this time to the Amazon forests of Eastern Peru.

Leaving the children with Mrs. Ross's parents, they started this South American venture in Lima and drove across the Andes in an over-aged newspaper delivery truck too old for the hills of San Francisco but good enough for the heights of Peru, Ecuador and Colombia.

In 1957-58 with Robin E. Leech of Mill Valley, a 21-year-old University of British Columbia student as assistant, the Rosses went on an expedition to equatorial and southern Africa, sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the California Academy of Sciences.

CHOOSING OF young Leech, widely known for his activities at Tamalpais High School, was in accordance with Dr. Ross's interest in helping brilliant young people, who, like himself, know where they are going.

David Quinn Cavagnaro, who is going on the current expedition to Asia, had an outstanding record of achievement at Tamalpais High School and has completed his freshman year at the University of California. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Cavagnaro of Mill Valley.

In the fall of 1959 Dr. Ross had an unexpected opportunity to go to Madagascar as the guest of some French research scientists, but he went by way of Europe.

"I had always said that I was going to save the museums in Europe for my old age," he said, "but on this trip during the four months I lived right among the people of the countries I visited I also worked in some of the institutions like our own academy at London, Rome, Paris, Genoa and Sardinia.

They Like Old-Time Harmony

Barbershoppers Are Singingest Bunch In Marin

By RAY HELLER

"If you're too busy to sing, you're too busy!"

That's the byword of Marin County's singingest organization, the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet singing in America, Inc. (often abbreviated SPEBSQSA), whose members are currently polishing their repertoire of old-time songs in preparation for their annual parade to be held next Saturday at 8 p.m. in the San Rafael High School auditorium. Members of the society will drop almost anything for a chance to ring a few chords of old-fashioned barbershop harmony.

The society has as its aim the uniting of harmony-loving men through the medium of barbershop quartet and chorus singing, and the preservation of a style of music that is part of America's heritage. The members consider the right of men of goodwill to express themselves in close harmony to be one of the few freedoms that has not been taxed or otherwise tampered with.

THE SOCIETY has chapters throughout the United States and Canada. In the Bay Area, members meet for weekly practice session in San Francisco, Berkeley, Hayward, San Jose and San Mateo, as well as in Marin. The Marin chapter meets at 8 o'clock every Tuesday evening at Adeline E. Kent Elementary School in Kentfield.

Each chapter periodically presents shows, called quartet parades, to entertain the public and demonstrate their musical craft, or to support some worthy cause. The coming Marin show, which falls in the first category, will have as its theme, "Cafe Barbershop," and will feature musical treats such as the Marin Chorus, currently Northern California regional champions, and the Bay Town Four, from Berkeley, rated the fourth place quartet in international competition.

The Marin chapter has had an outstanding history of musical accomplishments since its beginning in 1953. Under the direction of Dave Stevens, the chapter chorus won the Far Western district championship in 1954, defeating top choruses from California, Utah, Nevada and Arizona. The chorus has won the Northern California regional chorus competition three times — in 1953, 1958 and 1960. Following their July show the chorus will begin working toward their next competition, to be held in the fall.

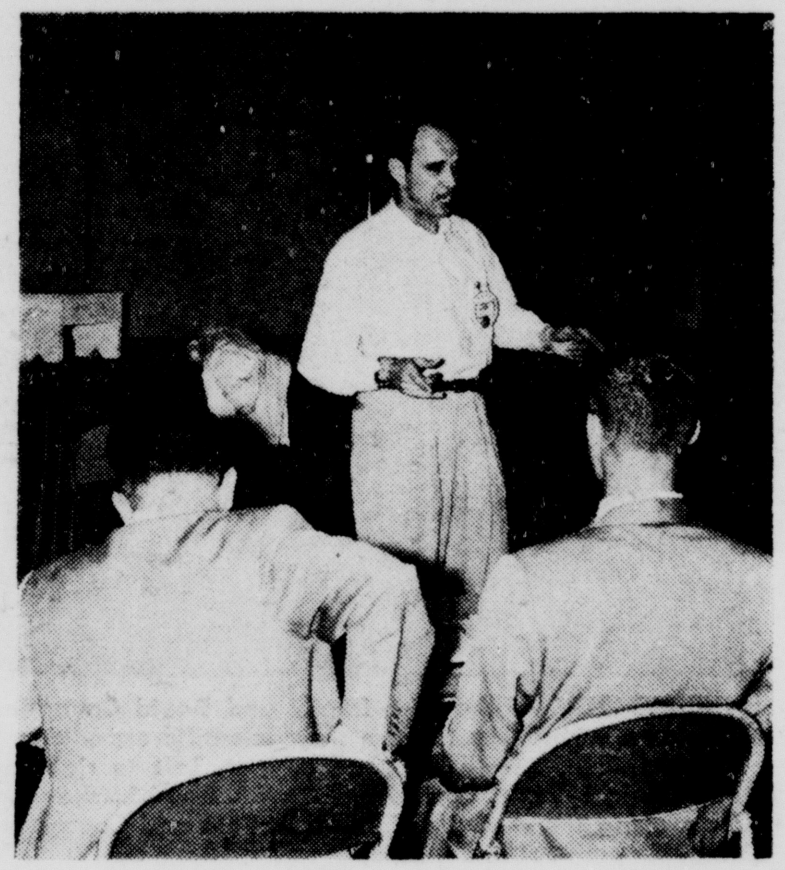
MEMBERS OF THE Marin Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., sit in four sections at their regular Tuesday night meetings—tenor, lead, bari and bass. Quartets are formed from members of the four sections and perform at shows as organized groups while continuing to participate in the chorus singing. The group meets at 8 o'clock at the Adeline E. Kent School in Kentfield.

During the Marin Chapter meetings, the main emphasis is on chorus work. For two hours, director Stevens puts the barbershoppers through their paces, teaching them new songs, or perfecting old ones for presentation at contests or shows. Each chord must be right; each syllable pronounced accurately before Dave is satisfied with a new number.

Members sit in sections, according to the part they are singing: Tenor, lead, bari, or bass. Arrangements for the chorus are the same as for quartets, so that once a number is learned, a quartet made up of one man from each section can readily sing the songs.

ABILITY TO read music is not a requirement for the barbershoppers, although many are accomplished musicians. What is most important is a good "ear" that can accurately distinguish the various harmony parts. Members who cannot read music memorize their part by listening to others in their section who can, and eventually develop some degree of proficiency in sight reading.

Prospective members of the Marin barbershoppers are given a brief test prior to their acceptance into the chorus to determine their voice range as an aid in placing the newcomer into the right section. Many prefer to start out in the lead section, which carries the melody, until they become more familiar with the harmony parts.



DIRECTOR DAVE STEVENS shows his charges how to "bend a chord." Stevens has led his barbershoppers through three Northern California championships and to one Far Western district title.

Two assistant directors, Steve Carrick of Fairfax and Ken Moran of San Anselmo, take over the chorus for small "package" shows given for various civic or other groups throughout the country. Stevens directs at larger shows and at contests.

After the chorus rehearsal, members relax, grab a cup of coffee, and take time out from singing for a short business meeting with chapter president Hal Valeschini of San Anselmo taking the floor. Guests and new members are introduced by Hal McCartey of San Anselmo, vice president in charge of membership and administration. Chapter treasurer is Roy Saxton of San Anselmo; secretary is Arvi Backmann of Terra Linda.

The chapter roster currently includes 46 members from a wide assortment of occupational groups. Typical of this assortment is a list of the occupations of the chapter officers, which includes a commercial real estate salesman, an airlines pilot, vice president of a printing company, a marine insurance adjuster and a manufacturer of veterinary medicines.

After the conclusion of the business meeting, Jim Heidinger of Novato, program vice president, takes over. Under Jim's direction, intra-chapter quartet contests may be held, or a "tag" quartet started. In a tag quartet, any member may tag the person singing his part and take his place in the quartet, continuing the song where the other left off, until he, in turn, is tagged. These informal singing groups give everyone a chance to participate and often provide the impetus for the organization of working quartets.

ONE QUARTET which got its start in this manner is the Frisco Knights, a newly organized group composed of two college students, a mechanic and a steel company employee. The quartet practices one night a week, as well as attending the regular Tuesday chapter meetings to establish their own repertoire. At chapter shows, the Frisco Knights sing with the chorus, as well as appearing as a quartet.

The barbershop style of singing presented by the Marin chorus and quarters originated as a product of musical evolution during the settling of the West. It flowered in countless small towns, where local barbershop was a principal gathering place, and consisted of spontaneous four-part harmonizing. In those days, before our modern mass-communication, the only entertainment was provided by the townspeople themselves.

Barbershopping reached its heyday in the early 1900s, when quartet singing became one of the most popular features of vaudeville entertainment. Shortly after the first World War, radio came into prominence, practically eliminating self-produced harmony. New sheet music, radio and recordings kept abreast of the increasing pace of modern living, and the older style of singing was in danger of being lost forever.

In 1938, a Tulsa, Okla., tax attorney, Owen C. Cash, rebelled against the trend and subsequently changed the music patterns of North America. Cash, a rabid partisan of quartet singing, decided to attempt to revitalize this truly American tradition. Since the first meeting of 26 enthusiasts organized by Cash, the society has grown from coast to coast in the United States and Canada, with members from every walk of life.

EACH YEAR the organization holds contests at regional, district and international levels to select the championship quarters and choruses for that year. Once having won the top honor, a quartet may not immediately compete again, but retains the title of champion of that year. Winning choruses may compete again after an elapsed time of three years.

The four quartets placing next below the champions qualify as medalists for that year, and are permitted to compete the following year for another crack at the top spot. A total of 45 quartets, who have won honors in their local region, compete at the international contest, held each year in a different city throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Judging of the quartets and choruses at these contests is based on a theoretical perfect score of 100 in each of five categories: Harmony, accuracy, balance and blend, arrangement, voice expression and stage presence. Scoring is determined by a panel of judges, one to each category, who have been certified by the national organization after passing a series of rigid examinations. In addition to being judged in the five categories, the competing groups must sing their songs within maximum and minimum time limits.

Certainly not to be overlooked in any discussion of barbershopping is the organization known as Sweet Adelines, the female counterparts of SPEBSQSA. This organization is entirely separate from the men's group, but has similar aims and methods. The Marin Chapter of Sweet Adelines meets at Adeline E. Kent School on Monday nights, at 8 o'clock.

Although the society encourages a professional grade of performance through its extensive contest system, it places first stress on the natural harmony of four voices —"grass roots" singing in the best American tradition. One of the most enjoyable aspects of barbershopping is still the practice of "woodshedding," which is the same spontaneous harmonizing and improvisation which gave the first barbershop quartet its popularity.

"Can I Launder My Pique Beach Coat?"

Yes and no. Pique, as you know, is 100% cotton. Some pique is woven. Other pique is pressed into the fabric with heat and steam or into a resin-treated fabric. When the pique is woven, it may be laundered. When it is pressed in—look out!

Woven pique has various surface textures formed by a raised rib running lengthwise with the garment. The very fine cords are termed "pinwale." When the pattern is a woven or embossed diamond-shaped design with a small dot in the center, it is termed "Birdseye." In the "waffle" pique the weave resembles a waffle.

Embossed designs are very attractive, but may flatten out when laundered or under a spot of water. Most resin-embossed designs hold up well in wear and cleaning. You would do well to consult your professional cleaner about them, first.

A note of warning. We heard of a young lady who laundered her white pique beach coat and neglected to remove a tiny piece of purple string from the pocket. The string "bled" and forever after left a purple patch on the pocket. Be certain to remove all trash from pockets when you attempt to launder such garments.

The four quartets placing next below the champions qualify as medalists for that year, and are permitted to compete the following year for another crack at the top spot. A total of 45 quartets, who have won honors in their local region, compete at the international contest, held each year in a different city throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Judging of the quartets and choruses at these contests is based on a theoretical perfect score of 100 in each of five categories: Harmony, accuracy, balance and blend, arrangement, voice expression and stage presence. Scoring is determined by a panel of judges, one to each category, who have been certified by the national organization after passing a series of rigid examinations. In addition to being judged in the five categories, the competing groups must sing their songs within maximum and minimum time limits.

Certainly not to be overlooked in any discussion of barbershopping is the organization known as Sweet Adelines, the female counterparts of SPEBSQSA. This organization is entirely separate from the men's group, but has similar aims and methods. The Marin Chapter of Sweet Adelines meets at Adeline E. Kent School on Monday nights, at 8 o'clock.

Although the society encourages a professional grade of performance through its extensive contest system, it places first stress on the natural harmony of four voices —"grass roots" singing in the best American tradition. One of the most enjoyable aspects of barbershopping is still the practice of "woodshedding," which is the same spontaneous harmonizing and improvisation which gave the first barbershop quartet its popularity.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

"Can I Launder My Pique Beach Coat?"

Yes and no. Pique, as you know, is 100% cotton. Some pique is woven. Other pique is pressed into the fabric with heat and steam or into a resin-treated fabric. When the pique is woven, it may be laundered. When it is pressed in—look out!

Woven pique has various surface textures formed by a raised rib running lengthwise with the garment. The very fine cords are termed "pinwale." When the pattern is a woven or embossed diamond-shaped design with a small dot in the center, it is termed "Birdseye." In the "waffle" pique the weave resembles a waffle.

Embossed designs are very attractive, but may flatten out when laundered or under a spot of water. Most resin-embossed designs hold up well in wear and cleaning. You would do well to consult your professional cleaner about them, first.

A note of warning. We heard of a young lady who laundered her white pique beach coat and neglected to remove a tiny piece of purple string from the pocket. The string "bled" and forever after left a purple patch on the pocket. Be certain to remove all trash from pockets when you attempt to launder such garments.

Costumes Add Color And Authenticity To Folk Dance Festival

Three-Woman Clinic Helps Solve The Attire Problems Of Dancers

One of Marin's most colorful events, the 16th Folk Dance Festival of Marin, will be held tomorrow on the College of Marin athletic field and in the San Rafael High School girls' gymnasium.

And the costumes will make a major contribution to that color.

Where do they come from? In Marin there's a special group of women organized for the purpose of helping dancers in the selection of costumes appropriate to their dances.

Started by the Marin Dance Council Inc. several years ago, the Costume Clinic meets each Thursday at the home of Mrs. Leslie Hennessey at 1050 Greenwood Dr., Novato, to plan and make the authentic costumes you will see at tomorrow's festival.

THE CLINIC consists of three members, Mrs. Hennessey, Mrs. Scott Tilden of San Rafael and Mrs. Edna Pixley of Mill Valley. These three have made a collection of patterns, embroidery designs and also compiled a list of shops where authentic braids, laces and materials may be obtained. Although the objective of the clinic is to serve the folk dancers, it has also been called upon to help Girl Scouts and other organizations with costume problems.

At the clinic a dancer is assisted with the planning and making of a certain costume —whether the country of origin uses striped or flowered material, cross-stitch or drawn work on the apron or a hat or flowers for the headdress.

The National Geographic is the handbook of the group plus a collection of pictures and books. But a collection of drawings by Mrs. Hennessey is being compiled into a handbook to guide the actual making of the costume.

Some dancers are lucky enough to own costumes imported from foreign countries. On a trip to Europe Edna Pixley brought back complete Austrian costumes for herself and daughter, Shannon. Mrs. Allyn Young owns costumes from Japan, Pakistan, the Philippines and Panama, each complete with footgear and accessories. Bill D'Alvy, Scott Tilden, Hillis Newcomb, Albert Heinrich, Roy Drescher, Fred Zimmerman, Mickey McGowan and Frank Kane are among the lucky men who own imported Austrian lederhosen (leather pants). Their partners, of course, made matching costumes.

Every dancer yearns for handmade boots. The men find them the most comfortable shoes to wear to a dance and the women sometimes make matching costumes according to the color of the boots.

The warm July weather limits the dancers in their choice of costumes, but at the yearly Karlstad Ball held New Year's Eve the Marin dancers really blossom out in new costumes and each vies with the others in the brilliance of color and the amount of embroidery.

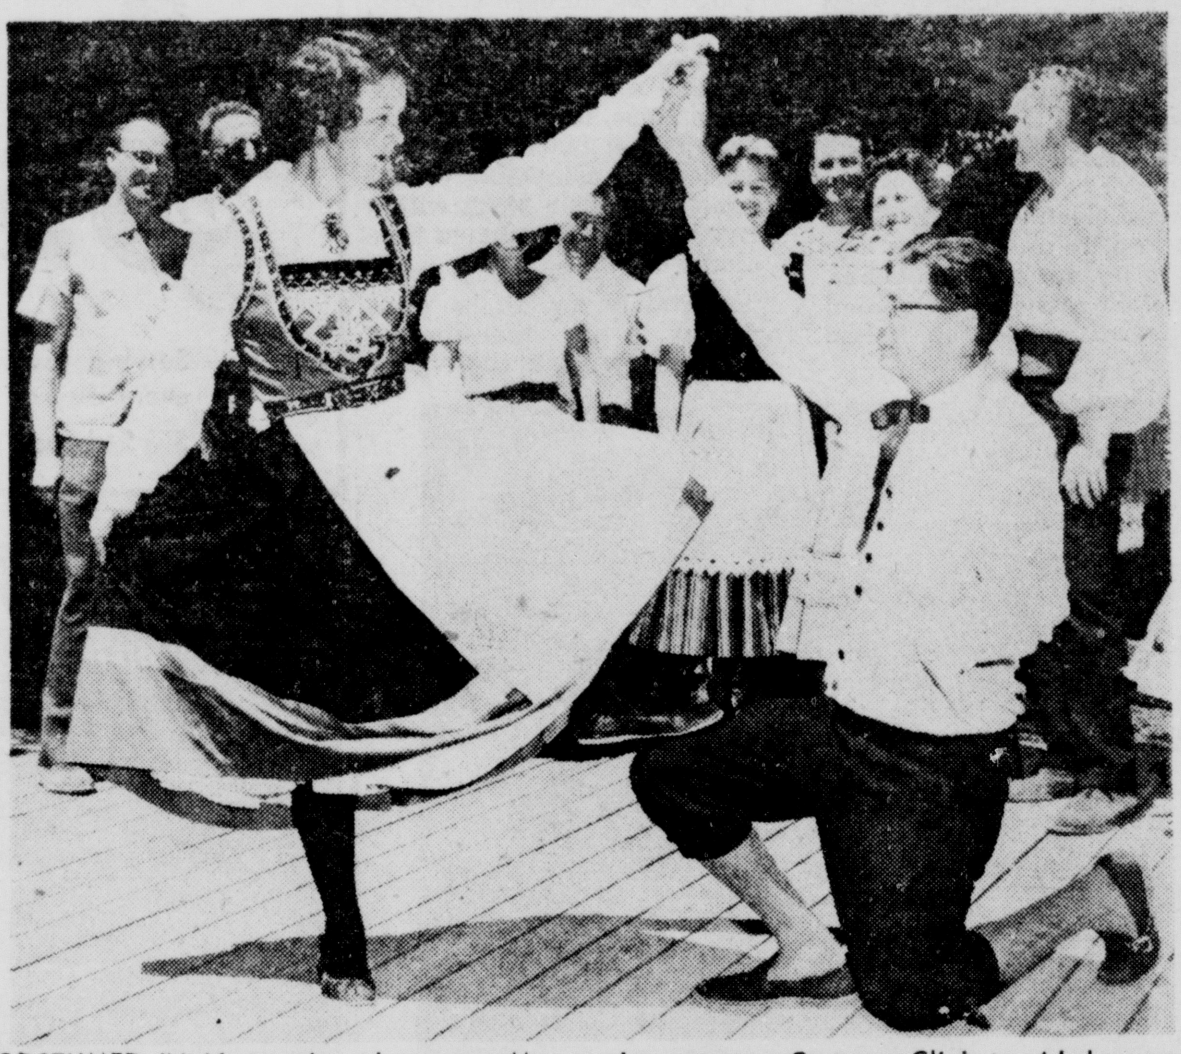
THE FOUR MOST popular costumes in Marin County are Czechoslovakian, Hungarian, Austrian and Ukrainian. These particular costumes entail a great amount of hand embroidery, lace and ribbons as well as many flowers. As many as 16 petticoats are worn under some Hungarian skirts. The men are fine figures in tight black pants with embroidered shirts and fancy jackets.

Attics, salvage shops and rummage sales are searched for pieces of lace, embroidery and old petticoats which are lovingly laundered and repaired and thereafter a treasured part of a costume.

This is the story of the many costumes you will see tomorrow afternoon from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the College of Marin, and from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at San Rafael High School.

TYROLEAN COSTUMES such as the ones being worn here by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Drescher of Mill Valley are always popular with folk dancers. Here they are seen forming the "window" sequence from the dance, "Tzillertaler Landler." (Photos by John Grant)

WILMA YOUNG'S Japanese Geisha girl costume is just one of the imported foreign costumes which are in the possession of Marin County folk dancers.



COSTUMED IN Norwegian dress are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fifield of Belveron. Several years ago the Marin Dance Council Inc. set up a Costume Clinic to aid dancers in attaining authenticity in their colorful costumes.

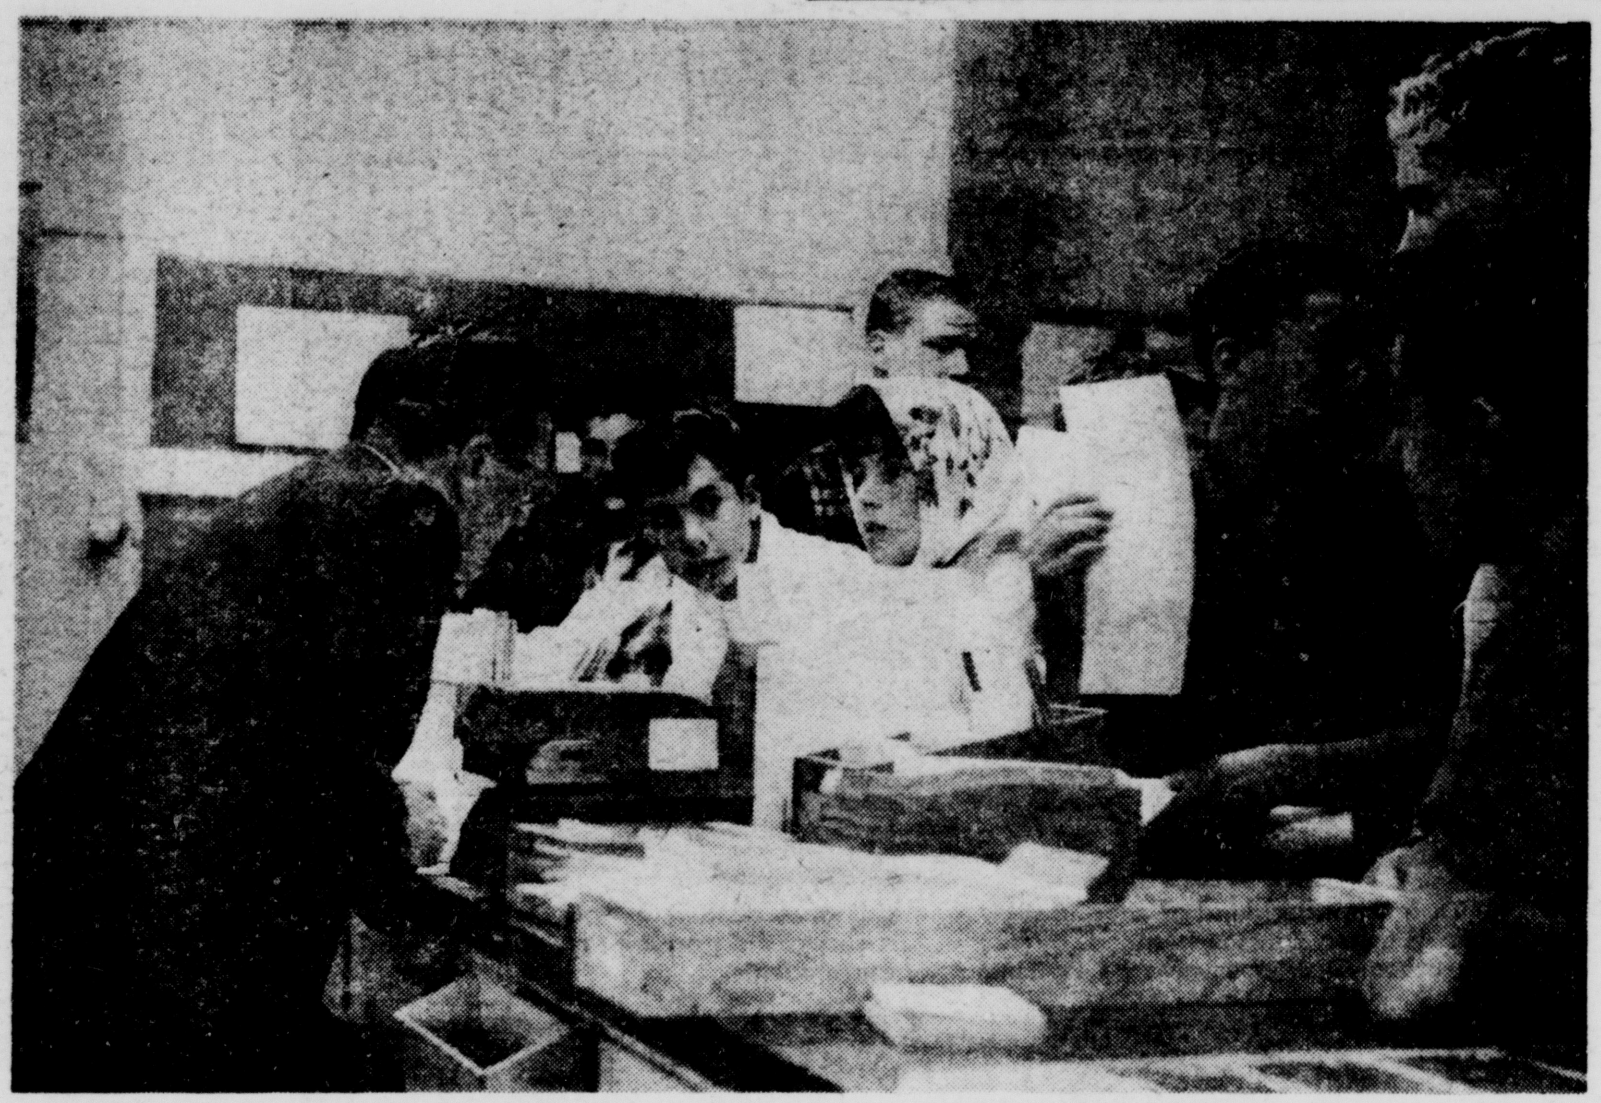
Summer School's For Them



STUDENTS CLAMORED to enroll in summer school classes at all three high schools in the Tamalpais School District. At Tamalpais High School, James Fitzgerald, the summer school dean, had his hands full at registration time. More than 2,000 Tam District students enrolled, and others were turned away because they had not pre-registered and provisions had not been made for instructors for them. For what those students who did enroll are doing in their summer classes, see photos on pages M12 and M13.

Sandy, who will be a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School next fall, wanted to take journalism her last year. With what she needed for college preparation and what the state requires, she couldn't work journalism into her schedule. But by taking the state-required course, "Problems of American Democracy," (P.A.D.), in summer school, she freed a semester period for journalism next year.

Jimmy, entering freshman at Tamalpais High School, prefers not to give up six weeks of his study hall next terms for the state-required driver education. He decided, therefore, to take the course in summer school, fulfilling the requirement and making himself eligible to take the driver training course later.

VIRGINIA, entering Redwood High, wants to learn how to sew, but her college preparatory work and her courses in music prohibit her from taking the course during the regular term. So there's summer school.

John needs extra work in English. His buddy needs it in algebra. Jane wants to try mechanical drawing. Science major Bill wants extra work in the lab. Language major Mary wants to take French. Scores of students want to learn to type, to take art or music or photography, to take a shop, home economics, or an elective in history.

There's the occasional summer school student who says: "I'm going because there's nothing else to do."

Or the one who claims: "My mother said I had to."

Or: "Because my friend wanted to go."

But the preponderant majority of summer school students know what they're about and value the opportunity. The tremendous expansion of the program in the Tamalpais Union High School District, for example, is strong indication that the summer sessions are more and more an extension of the regular year program.

The first summer session in the Tam District opened in 1949 with an enrollment of 80. The 1961 session, with classes at Tam, Drake and Redwood, opened with an enrollment of 2,001, representing almost half the 4,100 regular year enrollment in the three schools. The 1949 summer enrollment was less than 5 per cent of the regular year's enrollment.

IN THE BEGINNING, summer school classes were predominantly remedial: Refresher reading and arithmetic, review algebra, make-up history and English. Now these kinds of courses are in a distinct minority. Electives, experimentation, enrichment, supplementing, exploration — these are the more common motivations for summer school students. As the students and their parents demand, the educators oblige to the extent that the requests are educationally sound and do not disrupt the overall instructional program.

From the school's standpoint, summer sessions offer opportunity for experimentation. This year, for example, the huge enrollment for Problems of American Democracy at Drake, plus the interest of particular teachers and the district administration, allowed a project in team teaching to be instituted. Some aspects of the project may well become part of the year-around program in time.

BESIDES NEW techniques, new courses can be tried in summer school where the demand for special electives is high. While the already crowded curriculum of the regular year may not allow even more new courses, aspects of the course may be incorporated into an established course—critical thinking in summer school may become part of a senior English course in the regular year for example.

In making summer school as much like the regular year programs as possible, time, of course, is a limiting factor. Sessions run for four hours each day for four weeks, a total of 80 class hours, about the same taken in one semester for a single course. A summer school student takes only one course.

But while some skills and knowledge can be so compressed, other subjects, more developmental in nature, cannot be and are not so given: Required English, history, math and so forth. Then, too, courses like chemistry and physics, offered as full-year courses, cannot be given in summer school.

While the passing of the long summer vacation for students may be decried by some as an esthetic loss, it's part of the transformation of American society. The long, lazy, book-free summer was born of necessity, so the kids could help bring in the crops. When necessity passed, the long, lazy, teacher-free summer became a pastoral tradition.

Now, it seems, necessity is again rearing its prerogative.

And, apparently, the students who volunteer in such large numbers to attend summer classes are not unhappy about the situation.

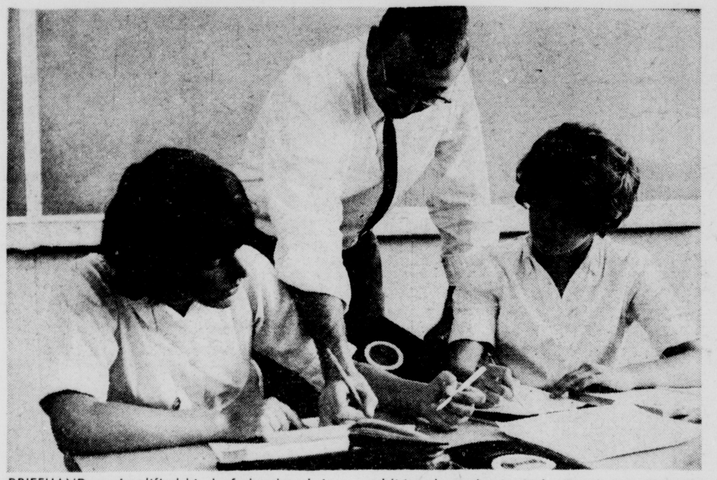
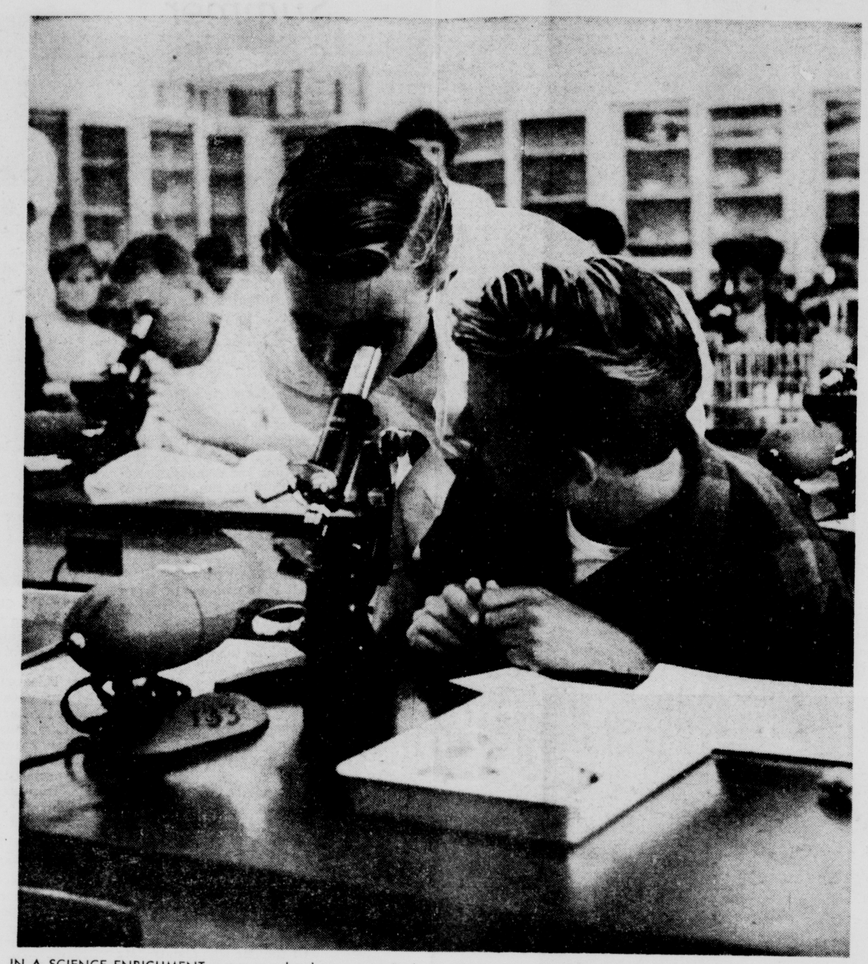
Summer School's In Session

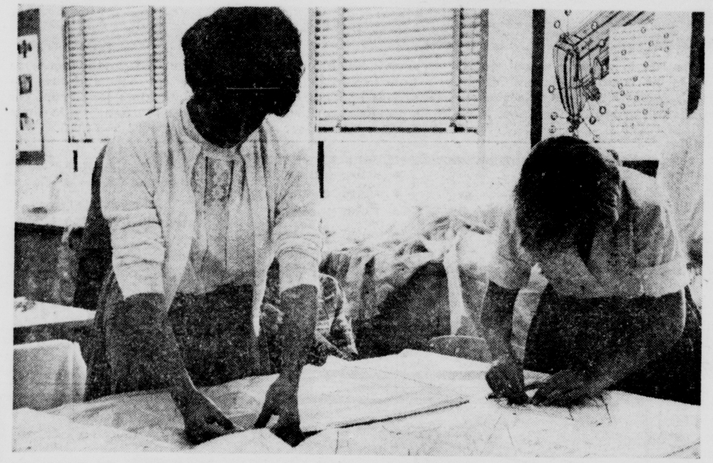


BRIEFHAND, a simplified kind of shorthand, is one of the summer courses planned by the Tamalpais School District to give its students additional academic tools. Teacher L. G. Lull Jr. checks the transcription done by two brief-hand students.



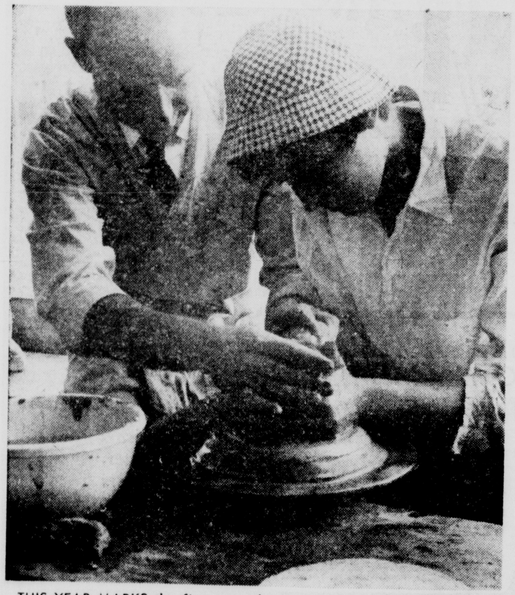
IN A SCIENCE ENRICHMENT summer school course at Redwood High School, Mike Gauder of Larkspur, who will be a senior next fall, called to a classmate, Jack White of Corte Madera, a Redwood junior, to come over and take a look at his discovery. Both are science majors who desired additional work in their chosen field.

MECHANICAL DRAWING sounded like an interesting summer school elective to Lynn McFarland of Kentfield. And it proved even more so when she found she was the only girl in her class. She will enter Redwood High in the fall as a freshman.

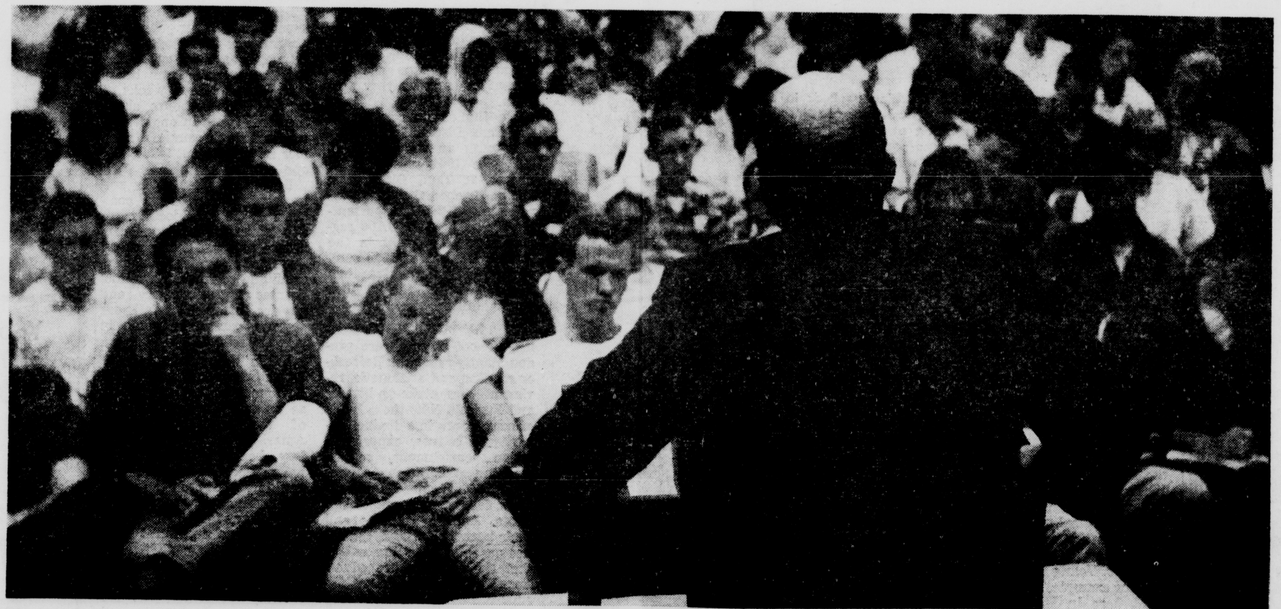


LEARNING OR IMPROVING sewing or other homemaking skills is an opportunity open to summer school students, many of whom could not work the courses into their regular schedules. Shelly Anton, left, and Ann Woodhull, both of Kentfield and entering Redwood High in the fall, learn to work with patterns.

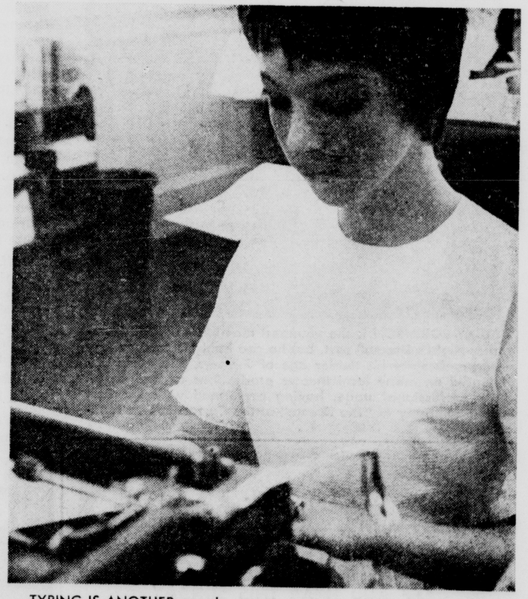
THE NEW LANGUAGE laboratories can be used during the summer by beginners getting a head start or by advanced students wanting more practice during the summer. This is an oral Spanish class at Drake, taught by Glenn S. Reznor.



THIS YEAR MARKS the first time the Tam District has actively recruited summer school teachers from outside its regular staff. Here Louis C. Ferrario Jr. of San Francisco State College helps Gloria Kirkland, Fairfax sophomore, to learn the tricks of the potter's wheel at Drake High.



MORE THAN 600 INCOMING Drake High School seniors desired to fulfill the state requirement of the "Problems of American Democracy" course during the summer months, freeing their regular school year schedule for an elective subject. The large enrollment permitted an experiment in team teaching. Here a guest lecturer addresses the students.



TYPING IS ANOTHER popular summer course, especially for college preparatory students who need the skill but often lack the time to take the subject during the regular school year. Melinda Smith of El Cerrito, spending the summer in Marin, takes advantage of the opportunity at Tam High.

Arts And Entertainment

JOHN AND ANN BREBNER, co-directors of the Marin Shakespeare Festival, check a two-century-old copy of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream." The talented husband and wife team were trained at the Old Vic Theater in London and have performed in many different countries.

GRETE TOZIER, choreographer for the Marin Shakespeare Festival, is a veteran ballerina who has performed in theaters all over Europe. As a member of the Vienna Folks Opera during the war, she was once bombed out on opening night. Grete works with the performers who present the dance sequences in the festival's production of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream."

An International Cast Brings A Bit Of Old Stratford To Marin

The Marin Shakespeare Festival, opening next Friday night at the Marin Art and Garden Center, is fresh as paint and loaded with talent.

Every major little theater group in Marin is represented in the cast or backstage crews. A score hail from Bay Area colleges. Others come from San Francisco groups such as the Actors Workshop. And a surprising number have performed in theaters all over the world.

RICKY ROBINSON is the youngest member of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream" cast, but he can hold his own on any stage. Despite his tender age of 7 years, Ricky has appeared on many local theater productions as well as on the professional stage, having performed with the Bert Lahr company of "The Dream" at the Curran in San Francisco.

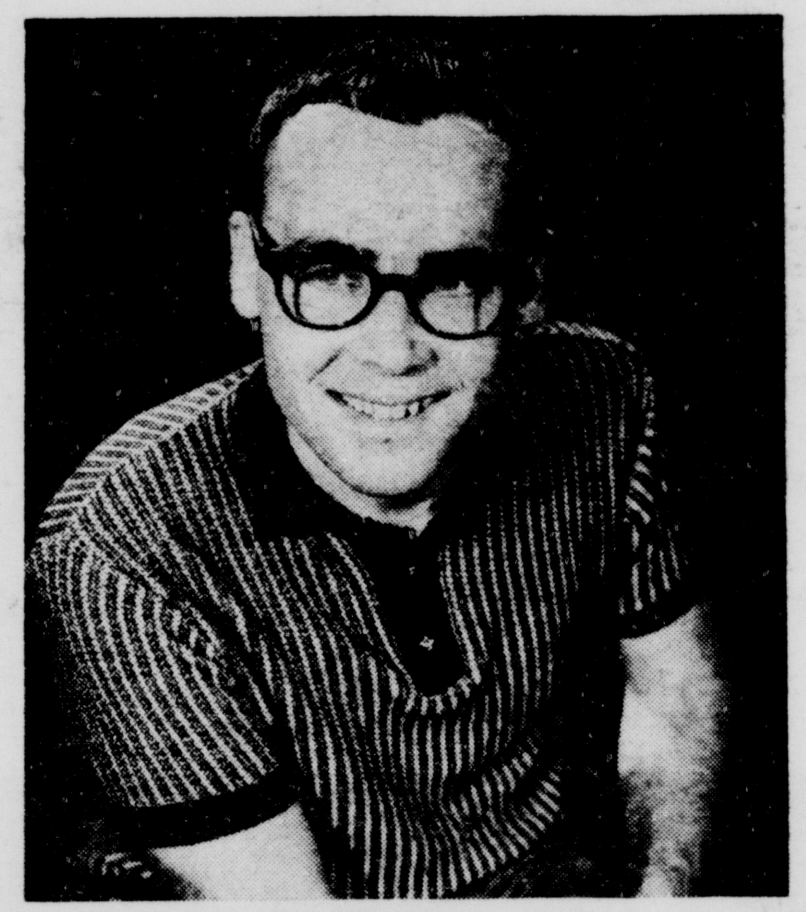
The 36 performers have a combined experience total of more than 400 different productions staged everywhere from Timoru, New Zealand, to Gondar, Ethiopia. Their collective resources and experience are now focused on "A Midsummer-Night's Dream," to be staged Friday and Saturday nights through Aug. 19 at the outdoor amphitheater at the center in Ross.

Co-directors John and Ann Brebner hail from widely separated corners of the British Commonwealth. Both have appeared at London's Old Vic Theatre and John once toured the continent as an actor and stage manager.

From Vienna comes Grete Tozier, choreographer for the festival. She studied dance in Berlin, also trained in Paris and for over 10 years was a top-flight ballerina with the Vienna State Opera Company, touring every major opera house in Europe.

Cliff and Dolly Potter, who play the roles of Egeus and Titania, also hail from Shakespeare's England. Their travels have taken them around the globe and they have performed with theater groups in Trinidad, in Carracas, Venezuela, and in Canada.

Brian Rowlands was raised in Santiago, Chile, where he performed with the Santiago Little Theater Bruce Chesse, who plays the mercurial Puck of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream," once gave marionette performances in Ethiopia while in the service. Bruce, incidentally, is the voice of Brother Buzz on the "Captain Satellite" TV show.



BRUCE CHESSE, who plays the mischievous Puck in the Marin Shakespeare Festival's production of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream," began acting at the age of 13. A professional puppeteer, Bruce once performed before native tribesmen in Ethopia while stationed in the Near East.

Harry Oltmans, widely-known in the Bay Area as a character actor, was born in Pretoria, South Africa, and educated in Holland; while Vickie Sahagian, who plays the Amazon Queen Hippolyta, speaks fluent Armenian and last year toured the Pacific with an original musical show.

Despite the cast's international flavor, there are native sons, too. Young Ricky Robinson, for example. He was born right here in Marin County seven years ago and, notwithstanding his tender age, he's already appeared as a professional, having performed with Bert Lahr at the Curran Theater in San Francisco. He's also appeared at the Gate Theater's recent production of "South Pacific."

"A Midsummer-Night's Dream" launches Northern California's first Stratford Theater. Director John Brebner says: "We chose the 'Dream' because of its wide appeal . . . It combines high comedy with colorful pageantry and should prove a delight for audiences of all ages."

A program of medieval music and dance will precede each performance. Tickets are available at the box office or through Orrick's Travel Bureau in San Anselmo. JOHN AND ANN BREBNER, co-directors of the Marin Shakespeare Festival, check a two-century-old copy of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream." The talented husband and wife team were trained at the Old Vic Theater in London and have performed in many different countries.

GRETE TOZIER, choreographer for the Marin Shakespeare Festival, is a veteran ballerina who has performed in theaters all over Europe. As a member of the Vienna Folks Opera during the war, she was once bombed out on opening night. Grete works with the performers who present the dance sequences in the festival's production of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream."

An International Cast Brings A Bit Of Old Stratford To Marin

The Marin Shakespeare Festival, opening next Friday night at the Marin Art and Garden Center, is fresh as paint and loaded with talent.

Every major little theater group in Marin is represented in the cast or backstage crews. A score hail from Bay Area colleges. Others come from San Francisco groups such as the Actors Workshop. And a surprising number have performed in theaters all over the world.

RICKY ROBINSON is the youngest member of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream" cast, but he can hold his own on any stage. Despite his tender age of 7 years, Ricky has appeared on many local theater productions as well as on the professional stage, having performed with the Bert Lahr company of "The Dream" at the Curran in San Francisco.

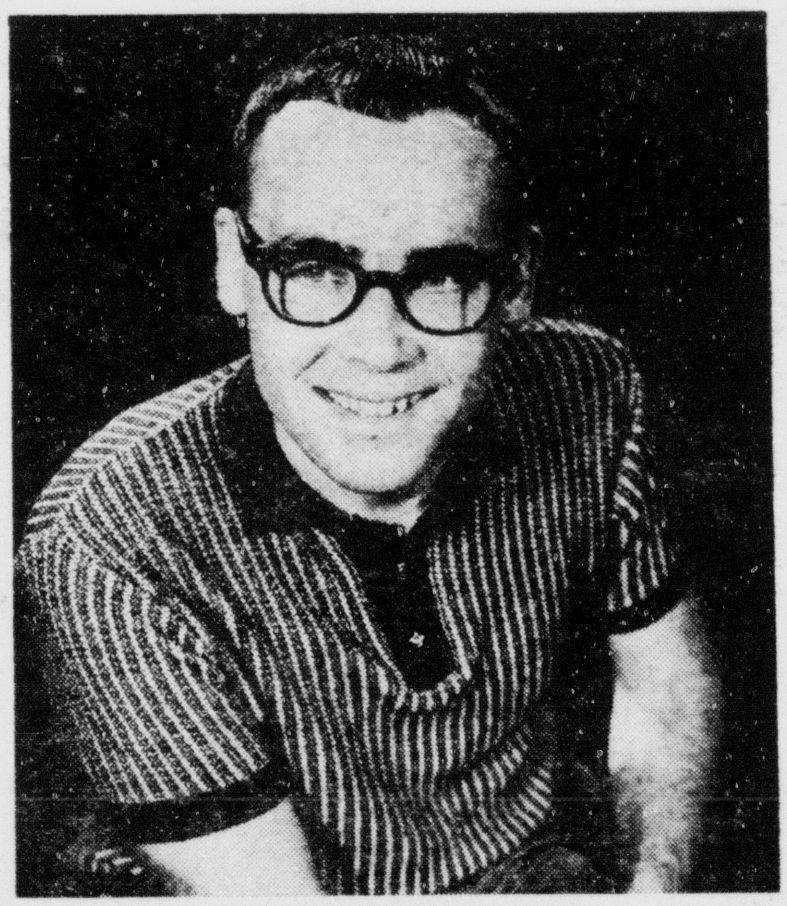
The 36 performers have a combined experience total of more than 400 different productions staged everywhere from Timoru, New Zealand, to Gondar, Ethiopia. Their collective resources and experience are now focused on "A Midsummer-Night's Dream," to be staged Friday and Saturday nights through Aug. 19 at the outdoor amphitheater at the center in Ross.

Co-directors John and Ann Brebner hail from widely separated corners of the British Commonwealth. Both have appeared at London's Old Vic Theatre and John once toured the continent as an actor and stage manager.

From Vienna comes Grete Tozier, choreographer for the festival. She studied dance in Berlin, also trained in Paris and for over 10 years was a top-flight ballerina with the Vienna State Opera Company, touring every major opera house in Europe.

Cliff and Dolly Potter, who play the roles of Egeus and Titania, also hail from Shakespeare's England. Their travels have taken them around the globe and they have performed with theater groups in Trinidad, in Carracas, Venezuela, and in Canada.

Brian Rowlands was raised in Santiago, Chile, where he performed with the Santiago Little Theater Bruce Chesse, who plays the mercurial Puck of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream," once gave marionette performances in Ethiopia while in the service. Bruce, incidentally, is the voice of Brother Buzz on the "Captain Satellite" TV show.



BRUCE CHESSE, who plays the mischievous Puck in the Marin Shakespeare Festival's production of "A Midsummer-Night's Dream," began acting at the age of 13. A professional puppeteer, Bruce once performed before native tribesmen in Ethopia while stationed in the Near East.

Harry Oltmans, widely-known in the Bay Area as a character actor, was born in Pretoria, South Africa, and educated in Holland; while Vickie Sahagian, who plays the Amazon Queen Hippolyta, speaks fluent Armenian and last year toured the Pacific with an original musical show.

Despite the cast's international flavor, there are native sons, too. Young Ricky Robinson, for example. He was born right here in Marin County seven years ago and, notwithstanding his tender age, he's already appeared as a professional, having performed with Bert Lahr at the Curran Theater in San Francisco. He's also appeared at the Gate Theater's recent production of "South Pacific."

"A Midsummer-Night's Dream" launches Northern California's first Stratford Theater. Director John Brebner says: "We chose the 'Dream' because of its wide appeal . . . It combines high comedy with colorful pageantry and should prove a delight for audiences of all ages."

Lecture Series On American Music Slated By Dominican

American music will be the subject of a series of eight lectures during the current summer session at Dominican College in San Rafael.

The lecturer will be Alden Gilchrist, composer, organist and lecturer in music at the University of California in Berkeley.

The lectures will give special attention to present-dav musical trends in the U. S. and to the future of American music. Musical illustrations by Bay Area artists will accompany all lectures. Artists to be heard will include Margot Blum of the San Francisco Opera Company, singing poems of Emily Dickinson set to music by Aaron Copland; Gwen Curatilo, also of the S. F. Opera Company, singing works of Barber and Sessions; and Terry Riley, Robert Basart and Jules Langert, Bay Area composers who will perform some of their own compositions.

Lecturer Gilchrist is a graduate of Lewis and Clark College in Portland. He did graduate work at the University of California where he is now teaching courses in music theory. He is the organist for the Calvary Presbyterian Church and the San Francisco Bach Festival, and director of the Berkeley Chorale Singers. In 1956-58 he was the holder of the "Prix de Paris" with studies abroad in composition. In 1955 he won a James Phelan Awards prize for composition.

Starting this coming Monday, the lecture-concerts will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week from 2 to 3:40 p.m. in Room 111 in Angelico Hall on the Dominican campus.

The lecture-concerts are open to the public. Fee for enrolled students is $15, for auditors $1.50 per lecture. There is no prerequisite.

CYMBAL SONG

Always I hear your ringing steps,
Miling wheaten sweeps
Of hill with warmth,
Nugget drappling corrugated fields.
Your laughter knells and echoes
Burnishing the land,
Ringing from each citadel of larks;
Shouting, gonging, singing
To each passerby your clash
Of cymbal song,
Orange sun,
Always I hear
Your ringing, singing steps.

Diary Turned Up At Seminary Provides Basis Of Pioneer Tale

AN OREGON IDYL by Nellie May Young, Arthur H. Clark Co., 111 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Randall Gould.

Basis for this piquant tale of an early pioneer journey which sighted our own Mount Tamalpais, and of Oregon life in 1883-84, was a diary of Janette Lewis Young which, through a strange set of circumstances, turned up at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

The author, another Young who is the wife of a onetime financial advisor to China during my own days in the Far East, learned of this through Clifford M. Drury. Final result was a sensitive, thoroughly-documented account of the travels and experiences of a Presbyterian home missionary, circuit rider and establisher of churches. Professor Drury contributes a foreword.

Though the story is quiet it abounds in sharp observation of early-day travel by train, ship and team, and of "whole-souled folks with simple manners."

We all know the meaning of "two bits" but how many have heard of days when a dime was a short bit, 15 cents a long bit?

Life was hard for soft easterners, but the Youngs gained toughness without hardness. They enjoyed great comfort from their love for each other and from many simple things we tend nowadays to overlook.

That husband Will was a capable man with word seems well illustrated by his summary of a pioneer dinner — "Good enough what there was of it and enough of it unless it was better."

Mrs. Young's health broke at last and they finished their days in California.

STRESS AND YOUR HEART by Fred Kerner, Hawthorne Books, Inc., 240 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Dr. Hans Selye, Canadian pathologist and medical researcher who has written the introduction for this book, is the originator of the concept which, greatly simplified, holds that stress and tension are man's major foes.

In this book author Kerner attempts to relate the doctor's theories to everyday life in language of the layman.

He first tells you what prolonged and acute stress and tension do to the human system—and especially the heart. He then offers some common sense advice on how this can be avoided.

In part, he states: "The fit man can depend upon his body and mind to remain fresh through crowded days of work, through patience-trying conflicts, through all critical periods. But this fitness can only be maintained by mental alertness that detects stress and offsets it, that recognizes tension for a debilitating state and relaxes it, that sees worry as a fruitless expenditure of energy and conserves power by taking wise action about all problems."

It's a strong argument for the tension-breaking coffee break and the relaxing hobby, a powerful case against the old admonition "never put off until tomorrow . . . " It is a grim warning to the man or woman who subjects his or her heart to the needless, life-shortening tensions of an existence of constant crisis.

THESE RUINS ARE INHABITED by Muriel Beadle, Doubleday and Co., 359 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

Here's quiet academic ramble through England and specifically Oxford University by the wife of a visiting professor from Cal Tech.

While Prof. George W. Beadle is at the English school he receives a Nobel Prize which projects he and his family more into the mainstream of English life than he bargained for. But it does give wife Muriel, ex-Los Angeles copywriter and feature writer, a chance to write down some of the things that happened to the family: Her feud with English laundries, the lack of pot-holders, the blossoming of a garden in the spring, difficulties with the phone company. That'll give you an idea.

The ladies might like it, but this is pretty thin gruel to expect the general reading public to swallow.

MURIEL BEADLE, shown with her son, Redmond, and husband, George W. Beadle, in their Oxford home, is the author of "These Ruins Are Inhabited," the entertaining story of the family's year in England while Beadle was a visiting professor at Oxford.

THE DAY JESSE JAMES WAS KILLED by Carl W. Breihan, Frederick Fell, Inc., 223 pages, $5. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Author Carl W. Breihan perhaps chose the title for this latest of the many books on Jesse James with an eye on the success of Jim Bishop's "The Day Lincoln Was Killed," "The Day Roosevelt Died," etc. In fact, his opening chapter is somewhat in the style of Bishop's work.

The style varies considerably, however, in the remainder of the book, major parts of which appear to be rewrites of Breihan's earlier "Complete and Authentic Life of Jesse James."

Breihan, executive editor of Writer's Digest, is a thorough researcher and an able reporter. "The Day Jesse James Was Killed" is factual. It puts the legendary outlaw in perspective, although the picture of Jesse emerges more as a series of jigsaw pieces to be fitted together than as a whole portrait.

The closing chapters are anti-climactic— a fault difficult to avoid in such a biography. The variation in style is at times disconcerting. And, like many a writer who specializes on a certain individual, Breihan attempts to make Jesse's career something that it was not. "There is also the fact that Jesse's death heralded the end of the Western badmen . . . He was the last of the colorful desperadoes on horseback," he writes on his final page. But Jesse was 10 years in his grave before Butch Cassidy and the Wild Bunch started on a career of crime that in several ways paralleled that of the James-Younger Gang, was no less desperate and was more typically western.

These faults are minor in a well-researched account of one of America's most famous desperadoes. "The Day Jesse James Was Killed" is worthy of a place on the Americana shelf.

Illustrations First Catch Attention Of Young Reader

MR. CAT'S WONDERFUL SURPRISE by Mary Chalmers, Harper, $2.50. Reviewed by Claudia Royal.

"Gramma, let's read that. It has more pictures I would like," said 4-year-old Jean Carole as she selected "Mr. Cat's Wonderful Surprise."

We think your young child will like it, too. Mary Chalmer's softly detailed pictures give tender meaning to the story. For the young child good illustrations are the first attraction to a book.

The cat family members were busy about their own affairs when the two boys saw their neighbors going by on a picnic. Immediately and repeatedly they asked their father for a picnic. Each time Mr. Cat said: "No, there's work to do."

In a few days the work was finished. Mrs. Cat packed a picnic lunch and they were off. Down at the creek they found Mr. Cat's wonderful surprise—the prettiest thing they had ever seen.

GENERAL LEE by Fitzhugh Lee, Premier Civil War Classics (Fawcett), 75 cents, 404 pages. Reviewed by Elizabeth Kibbee.

Due to the prose style in fashion before the turn of the century and also to the character of Robert E. Lee, it seems that no contemporary account of him can be anything but a paean of praise. This biography, originally published in 1893 and now reissued in paperback, written by the general's nephew, himself a Confederate colonel, is no exception. In fairness, there does seem to be some effort at restraint.

The colonel is at his best (and driest) when he writes about battles, troop movements, and other officers. In describing Lee's personal life he is able to quote from family papers and letters. The nephew seems aware that, although Robert E. Lee's youth was both happy and successful, his life builds toward the long and gathering tragedy of leading a doomed cause. Here, as always with Lee, we are conscious of the grace and nobility he brought to it.

So: What with the hoisting of the Stars and Bars by certain not-so-gallant southerners lately, it's soothing to refleet on that calm and handsome visage, safe forever from iconoclasm.

Life was hard for soft easterners, but the Youngs gained toughness without hardness. They enjoyed great comfort from their love for each other and from many simple things we tend nowadays to overlook.

That husband Will was a capable man with word seems well illustrated by his summary of a pioneer dinner — "Good enough what there was of it and enough of it unless it was better."

Mrs. Young's health broke at last and they finished their days in California.

STRESS AND YOUR HEART by Fred Kerner, Hawthorne Books, Inc., 240 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Dr. Hans Selye, Canadian pathologist and medical researcher who has written the introduction for this book, is the originator of the concept which, greatly simplified, holds that stress and tension are man's major foes.

In this book author Kerner attempts to relate the doctor's theories to everyday life in language of the layman.

He first tells you what prolonged and acute stress and tension do to the human system—and especially the heart. He then offers some common sense advice on how this can be avoided.

In part, he states: "The fit man can depend upon his body and mind to remain fresh through crowded days of work, through patience-trying conflicts, through all critical periods. But this fitness can only be maintained by mental alertness that detects stress and offsets it, that recognizes tension for a debilitating state and relaxes it, that sees worry as a fruitless expenditure of energy and conserves power by taking wise action about all problems."

It's a strong argument for the tension-breaking coffee break and the relaxing hobby, a powerful case against the old admonition "never put off until tomorrow . . . " It is a grim warning to the man or woman who subjects his or her heart to the needless, life-shortening tensions of an existence of constant crisis.

THESE RUINS ARE INHABITED by Muriel Beadle, Doubleday and Co., 359 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

Here's quiet academic ramble through England and specifically Oxford University by the wife of a visiting professor from Cal Tech.

While Prof. George W. Beadle is at the English school he receives a Nobel Prize which projects he and his family more into the mainstream of English life than he bargained for. But it does give wife Muriel, ex-Los Angeles copywriter and feature writer, a chance to write down some of the things that happened to the family: Her feud with English laundries, the lack of pot-holders, the blossoming of a garden in the spring, difficulties with the phone company. That'll give you an idea.

The ladies might like it, but this is pretty thin gruel to expect the general reading public to swallow.

THE DAY JESSE JAMES WAS KILLED by Carl W. Breihan, Frederick Fell, Inc., 223 pages, $5. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Author Carl W. Breihan perhaps chose the title for this latest of the many books on Jesse James with an eye on the success of Jim Bishop's "The Day Lincoln Was Killed," "The Day Roosevelt Died," etc. In fact, his opening chapter is somewhat in the style of Bishop's work.

The style varies considerably, however, in the remainder of the book, major parts of which appear to be rewrites of Breihan's earlier "Complete and Authentic Life of Jesse James."

Breihan, executive editor of Writer's Digest, is a thorough researcher and an able reporter. "The Day Jesse James Was Killed" is factual. It puts the legendary outlaw in perspective, although the picture of Jesse emerges more as a series of jigsaw pieces to be fitted together than as a whole portrait.

The closing chapters are anti-climactic— a fault difficult to avoid in such a biography. The variation in style is at times disconcerting. And, like many a writer who specializes on a certain individual, Breihan attempts to make Jesse's career something that it was not. "There is also the fact that Jesse's death heralded the end of the Western badmen . . . He was the last of the colorful desperadoes on horseback," he writes on his final page. But Jesse was 10 years in his grave before Butch Cassidy and the Wild Bunch started on a career of crime that in several ways paralleled that of the James-Younger Gang, was no less desperate and was more typically western.

These faults are minor in a well-researched account of one of America's most famous desperadoes. "The Day Jesse James Was Killed" is worthy of a place on the Americana shelf.

Illustrations First Catch Attention Of Young Reader

MR. CAT'S WONDERFUL SURPRISE by Mary Chalmers, Harper, $2.50. Reviewed by Claudia Royal.

"Gramma, let's read that. It has more pictures I would like," said 4-year-old Jean Carole as she selected "Mr. Cat's Wonderful Surprise."

We think your young child will like it, too. Mary Chalmer's softly detailed pictures give tender meaning to the story. For the young child good illustrations are the first attraction to a book.

The cat family members were busy about their own affairs when the two boys saw their neighbors going by on a picnic. Immediately and repeatedly they asked their father for a picnic. Each time Mr. Cat said: "No, there's work to do."

In a few days the work was finished. Mrs. Cat packed a picnic lunch and they were off. Down at the creek they found Mr. Cat's wonderful surprise—the prettiest thing they had ever seen.

GENERAL LEE by Fitzhugh Lee, Premier Civil War Classics (Fawcett), 75 cents, 404 pages. Reviewed by Elizabeth Kibbee.

Due to the prose style in fashion before the turn of the century and also to the character of Robert E. Lee, it seems that no contemporary account of him can be anything but a paean of praise. This biography, originally published in 1893 and now reissued in paperback, written by the general's nephew, himself a Confederate colonel, is no exception. In fairness, there does seem to be some effort at restraint.

The colonel is at his best (and driest) when he writes about battles, troop movements, and other officers. In describing Lee's personal life he is able to quote from family papers and letters. The nephew seems aware that, although Robert E. Lee's youth was both happy and successful, his life builds toward the long and gathering tragedy of leading a doomed cause. Here, as always with Lee, we are conscious of the grace and nobility he brought to it.

So: What with the hoisting of the Stars and Bars by certain not-so-gallant southerners lately, it's soothing to reflect on that calm and handsome visage, safe forever from iconoclasm.

Pick Your Shrubs For Scent

To chance upon a lovely garden scent is always a joy, but why leave it to chance? Let your nose be your guide at planting time and you can be sure of fragrance when and where you want it.

Right now, for instance, you can do something to fill your summer nights with perfume — and a greater pleasure there is none. Who can resist the garden on a balmy night, when it's full of fragrance from some unseen shrub?

There are several shrubs that will give you night fragrance, but none of them does it better than night scented jasmine. So fragrant is it, in fact, that planting it a discreet distance from the house will prevent too much of a good thing. The flowers are not spectacular to look at, but certainly wonderful to sniff. You will be more than pleased you chose them.

Star jasmine dispenses a more delicate perfume and its show of pinwheel blooms is worth planting for itself. Train it up a pillar to an overhead trellis or merely let it ramble into a mounding, attractive ground cover.

Citrus in many forms will yield its irresistible scent on a summer night. Several tubbed dwarf citrus trees will make your patio more pleasant in either night or day.

Gardenias, of course, are to be planted for garden fragrance and here again tubbing is one answer for having that fragrance close at hand. The jasmine family — not to be confused with the two would-be jasmines mentioned above — has many members that give off delicate fragrance on a balmy evening. Common jasmine and Italian jasmine are both summer-long bloomers.

The Garden Must Have Water

Gardeners who have earned their green thumbs in other states are often caught napping by California's long, dry summer. They see them, but they can't really believe that so many cloudless days can stack themselves one on top of the other.

There's an excuse for such newcomers as these, but there's none at all for gardeners who have always hoed their rows in the Golden State. Yet, many a native Californian lets his garden dry out once too often every summer, and the result is not the lush landscape he should enjoy, but one in which choice plants barely survive.

The simplest solution to this annual bout with drought is to mulch around plants and in flower beds. Not only will a good mulch conserve moisture in the soil, but it will discourage weeds. That alone would warrant its practice in many gardens.

The trouble with mulches is that most gardeners don't apply them heavily enough. On the theory that a little is better than too much, they often apply such a thin layer that it does little, if any, good.

When mulching around camellias and rhododendrons, for instance, the knowing gardener will layer two to three inches of wet peat moss. Compare that to any mulching you might have done last year. Such a layer of peat will reduce the amount of watering you have to do by considerably more than half. Just don't let the mulch dry out. Peat moss takes a long time to soak up again.

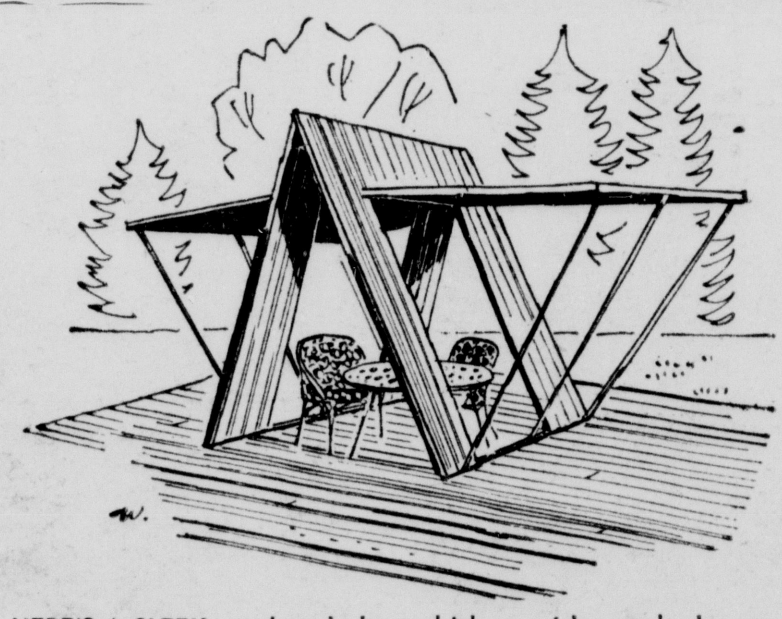
Around his roses, the mulch wise gardener again will lay it on thick. A three-inch layer of steer manure, or one of the new commercial organic mulch products, is not at all out of line. Try it and see how happy your roses remain even in the hottest weather with less than the normal watering, and you'll have no weeds to worry about.

You should also mulch around other moisture loving shrubs such as azaleas, hydrangeas and hibiscus. Chrysanthemums, dahlias, all summer flowers can be mulched to their benefit. Once you've learned the trick, you'll find it's not only life saving for your plants, but labor saving for yourself.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- You can stop pinching chrysanthemums after this week. Food and water is all they need between now and bloom.
- Set out bedding plants, some for quick color now, others for bloom in fall.
- Plant berried shrubs now and enjoy their fall display.
- If you are looking for a garden brightener, tuberous begonias can be bought in bloom.
- And if you want a vacation-time project, consider a small pond with running water.



HERE'S A SLEEK garden shelter which provides a playhouse for the children when the walls are down in the form of a tent, or a lounging spot for adults when the roof walls are lifted out to make shade. The shelter is set on a wood deck of Douglas fir which sets it out from the yard. A simple "A" frame of Douglas fir framing lumber and lightweight western red cedar siding is all that is required.

Inside the home one is impressed with the wide entry which leads from an open staircase to a lower level. The large square living room on the right has handsome beamed ceilings and wood walls in soft glazed ash. A floor to ceiling fireplace of cement blocks provides a dramatic highlight in the room. An expanse of glass across one entire wall reveals the panoramic bay view and the spires of the Golden Gate Bridge in the background.

To the left of the entry is a charming formal dining room which Mrs. Wilkins has artistically furnished in traditional fashion.

A central kitchen carries out the same handsome ash tone used in the living room accented with white formica counter tops. Stainless steel sink dishwasher cooking units and oven as well as the pulls on the cabinet doors are all coordinated.

Opening directly off kitchen and dining room is a charming "full width of the house" enclosed sun porch which serves the Wilkins family and their two active boys well for television snack eating and general hobby activities.

A separate wing houses a complete utility room with room for washer, dryer, and all ironing and storage equipment directly adjoining the three large bedrooms. Beamed ceilings are used throughout to add to the rustic, rural charm. The master bedroom has its own dressing area and a huge bath with mosaic insets in the tile. Another family bath is done in charcoal grey tile. Both baths have vanities.

The house, designed by architect Stephen Heller, lends itself especially well to family living and was built by the building team of Rowley and Harn of Del Mar who feature an arrangement whereby the purchaser can select the site of his choice and have the developers of Del Mar build the kind of a house he has always wanted.

There are only 21 sites still available in Del Mar and each one is earmarked for a built-to-order house once the prospective purchaser selects the site. Lawyer, Police Chief Will Debate Ethics Of Wire-Tapping Tonight

THE CLASH between the public security and the individual's rights occurs in many fields, one of them law enforcement.

One phase of that conflict will be aired tonight on KRON on the "Nation's Future" show at 9:30 o'clock when a controversial police chief and a controversial lawyer debate: "Are Wire-Tapping and Eavesdropping Desirable Law Enforcement Methods?"

Answering "yes" will be William H. Parker, police chief of Los Angeles. Replying "no" will be Edward Bennett Williams, one of the country's best known criminal attorneys.

Williams has been defense counsel for such celebrities as James Hoffa, Dave Beck, Frank Costello and Bernard Goldfine, and represented the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy at the Senate censure hearings. Chief Parker is an attorney and author as well as law enforcement officer. He has been acclaimed by many for his vigorous enforcement of the law in L.A. But the California Supreme Court once criticized him sharply for using an illegal listening device to obtain evidence in a bookmaking arrest.

The debate was actually held June 28 and recorded on tape for broadcast tonight. And the word is that the discussion is a most interesting one.

INCIDENTALLY, one of Williams' most colorful clients, Teamster Union chief James R. Hoffa, just re-elected to the international presidency of that huge labor brotherhood, will be on TV tomorrow.

He will be interviewed by a panel of newsmen on the "Meet the Press" show over KRON at 4 p.m.

TWO EXTREMES of the political pole will collide in a battle of words on "Issues and Answers" on KGO tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. They are liberal Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and conservative Republican Sen. John G. Tower of Texas.

The two differ on just about any political problem imaginable. But tomorrow they are slated to confine their arguments to two big issues — whether or not a federal aid to education bill should and will be passed by this session of Congress, and the Kennedy administration's foreign policy program.

STILL ANOTHER "talk" show tomorrow that should be interesting is scheduled for the "Accent" series, seen at 11:30 a.m. on KPIX, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., historian and special assistant to President John F. Kennedy, and Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review and an author, will discuss "Freedom in American Literature."

AND IF YOU would prefer to do some talking of your own, but you aren't always certain as to just how to go about it, tune in on the new KRON series, "Speak Up," tomorrow at noon.

Its 15 programs will deal with parliamentary procedure—how to direct and participate in orderly meetings. N. Edd Miller, professor of speech at the University of Michigan, is the program host, and he will be assisted by experts from a number of other universities, the theater, business, labor, the professions, and various clubs.

BAY AREA favorite comedienne Phyllis Diller will be among the guests on the "Ed Sullivan Show" tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on KPIX. Sullivan will also show scenes from the new motion picture, "Goodbye Again," with Ingrid Bergman, Yves Montand and Anthony Perkins.
